

Consumer Wins $120 Small Claims Case Against Cengas

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

A consumer who claimed she was overcharged for gas consumption won her battle Monday as Lancaster County Judge Ralph Slocum held that Cengas overcharged her $120 during the 1973-74 budget year.

In the first case brought against Cengas by a consumer in Lancaster County Small Claims Court, Ann Barton alleged she was overcharged for gas consumption in that year as compared with the previous year.

When told of the decision, Barton said, "Justice has finally been done."

She said she would encourage people who have been overcharged as she was to take any action which is appropriate to prove their case.

Must Go To Court

Unfortunately, she said, the consumer usually must take the battle to the courts and prove that a utility firm may be in error, while the utility firm can withhold service if the consumer fails to pay a bill which the utility firm alleges he owes.

In his ruling, Judge Slocum said that taking into consideration all of the evidence, the "fair way to settle the issue is to take the defendant's gas bill figures from the five previous years and find the average amount and then add the 15% rate increase for last year and subtract that total from the gas company's stated amount of $412.20.

Slocum said total bills for the last five years for Barton's residence at 910 S. 20th were $1,270.79 for an average amount of $254.16.

He figured that 15% of that was $38.12, resulting in a total of $292.28. Taking this from the $412.20 Cengas claimed Barton owed for the 1973-74 billing period, he figured an overcharge of $119.92.

During testimony at the hearing in December, Barton said that although there were rate increases during the 1973-74 period, she didn't feel with her efforts to conserve energy during the 1973-74 winter months that her total year's bill should have been 96% higher than the previous year.

Couldn't Explain It

Cengas representatives testified at the hearing they didn't understand why Barton's bill went up so much in 1973-74 over 1972-73.

In his ruling, Slocum noted that Dick Sievers, division commercial manager for Cengas, had said, "What comes in, comes out," probably referring to the meter or a computer," Slocum said.

The judge had suggested the parties could compromise and settle the matter and suggested a recess or a continuance of the case. Sievers' feeling was that the "gas company had a franchise; that it must treat everyone alike," Slocum said.

"No one involved had mentioned that probably mistakes had been made in meter readings or computation figures except the plaintiff in her closing argument," Slocum said. The court had asked Cengas to furnish copies of the actual meter reader's cards and the rates so it could determine how the bill had been figured.

Cards Destroyed

Slocum said Cengas furnished the court with gas rate sheets but reading cards had been destroyed.

Sievers, according to the judge, explained that these cards are automatically read by an IBM reader and then destroyed.

In testimony in the case, Barton said she was on a budget plan with Cengas whereby she was charged a set amount each month with the adjustment being made at the end of the year in June.

She said in the 1972-73 year her total year's bill was $203.60 after she received a $30 refund at the close of that year's billing period.

However, at the close of the 1973-74 period, she was notified she owed $166.63 more than was paid on her budget plan.

"I don't see how this is possible when I felt I used less gas because I made a concerted effort to conserve fuel last year," Barton said.

No Way To Tell

Cengas officials contended there was no way of knowing if there had been an error in the reading the year before or if there had been some malfunction in the meter during a portion of the 1973-74 year since they had records of only one reading for the year.

They said it is the responsibility of the consumer to watch to make sure nothing is wrong with the meter on a monthly basis so that Cengas can check any apparent erratic billing periods.

Slocum commented that it appeared that unless a consumer takes all the readings himself and checks the rates, there is no way to go back and show the readings or rates were wrong.

Entire Scotts Bluff Election Said Void

Albert Answers Ford . . .

43% Of Rebate To Help Top 17%

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's proposal to rebate some of 1974 income taxes would put 43 per cent of the refund into the hands of the richest 17 per cent of taxpayers, House Speaker Carl Albert said Monday night.

"The Democratic leadership has asked the House to pass a substantial tax reduction bill for middle and lower income persons only by the end of March," Albert said in a broadcast reply to the speech in which Ford detailed his economic proposals a week ago.

A spokesman for Albert said the three television networks had rejected a request for live time for the reply. It was carried by some radio outlets and scheduled for delayed telecasts.

Albert said Ford's proposal for a tax on all fuel "would have an astounding inflationary impact, and would seriously disrupt many industries."

"Under his proposal you would pay not only as much as 25 per cent more for gasoline but also more for heating oil, electricity, food, fertilizer and other products as well," the speaker said.

"What conceivable good will it do for a family to receive a $75 to $100 tax rebate if that same family is then required to pay $250 to $300 more during the year for gasoline to get to and from work and to heat their home?" Albert asked. "... Furthermore, there is no assurance that it would cut gasoline consumption."

He said that before having recourse to higher gasoline prices, Congress might consider "gasoline rationing, gasless days, excise taxes on high horsepower vehicles and any other measures the Congress may deem advisable."

Albert said the country must have "a tough but selective price control policy."

"The Democratic leadership proposes the establishment of an independent agency with subpoena power, the resources to hold extensive hearings, and the authority to delay price increases for up to 90 days, and in extreme cases the power to impose controls for a longer period on a selective basis," he said.

Albert said Congress' first goal "is to help the more than 6.5 million Americans who are out of work to find a good job."

The tax cut is part of this program, he said, and it also includes lowering excessive interest rates and channeling of credit into productive areas.

"But," he continued, "one of the most direct ways to put people back to work is through public service jobs. These jobs will keep Americans working and eating until the economy is revived to the point where jobs open in private business."

With a reference to Ford's proposals to set a 5 per cent ceiling on cost-of-living increases, including Social Security, and to increase the price of food stamps, Albert said:

"I am convinced that the worse thing we could do during this difficult time is to burden Social Security and food stamp recipients with the brunt of the recession as the President suggests. Those least able to protect themselves will be treated fairly and equitably by the Congress."

Albert said Ford took office urging Congress to enact a national health program, but now is threatening to veto such legislation.

Carpenter Attorney Says 'None Of Ballots Signed'

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

The entire Nov. 5 general election in Scotts Bluff County was illegally conducted and should be replaced by a special election ordered by the Legislature, Terry Carpenter's attorney told state senators Monday.

Former Sen. Richard Fellman of Omaha presented his case to the special legislative committee considering Carpenter's contest of the election of Sen. William Nichol of Scottsbluff.

If the Legislature is going to strictly interpret the letter of election laws, Fellman said, "all votes cast" in Scotts Bluff County are legally void since ballots were not signed by two election judges as required by statute.

"None Were Signed" "... None of the punch card ballots and/or the ballot envelopes were signed by two judges of the election board," Fellman told the committee chaired by Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly.

"... A special election should be called to enable the voters of Scotts Bluff County to cast their votes on legal ballots."

That, Fellman said, is the inescapable conclusion which senators must reach "if this committee wants to follow the letter of the statutes."

Such a finding would not only invalidate the legislative election, but throw out Scotts Bluff County votes in the narrow Third District congressional election, already under challenge in the House of Representatives.

Fellman presented his case to the committee in rebuttal to a letter from Attorney General Paul Douglas which had suggested that Carpenter "no longer has a right to have his contest heard" because he did not meet the 10-day deadline for filing a bond to guarantee his payment of costs in the contest should he lose.

"Technical Situation" That, Fellman said, "strikes us as a technical situation at the ultimate."

Carpenter is financially able to post a bond which would guarantee his payment of the costs, Fellman said.

But if the Legislature should choose to follow the 10-day deadline requirement, and throw Carpenter's challenge out on that ground, it should also consider the requirements of the law which states that ballots must be signed by two election judges in order to be valid, Fellman argued.

In regard to the Douglas letter, he said, "the issue is whether (the Legislature) wants to hide behind a technicality pointed out to you by lawyers from the State Department of Justice or whether it wants to face the people of Nebraska under the constitution of this state."

Furthermore, Fellman suggested, "to close the door (to the contest) at this point is to take an unconstitutional act."

Nichol listened to the committee proceedings from a front-row seat, but his attorneys were not in attendance.

Consideration Urged

Sens. Ernest Chambers and John Cavanaugh III, both of Omaha, also urged the committee to disregard the 10-day bond filing deadline and proceed with consideration of the contest.

Douglas, Chambers said, reached "an unwarranted conclusion that will have an influence on the Legislature."

The attorney general's statement represented an "intrusion into the heart of the Legislature's constitutional function," he said.

The filing deadline, Cavanaugh said, is "a procedural matter which should have been raised before the Legislature took jurisdiction" of the matter, and the attorney general's conclusion was "improper."

The committee will resume its deliberations Tuesday at 4:30 p.m.

State Techs Need Added Funds Fast

Legislature stories on Page 9

The state's technical community colleges will be unable to meet their February payroll if state funds are not made available to replace their lost property tax revenue, the Legislature's Appropriations Committee was told Monday.

The colleges are seeking a $5,968,289 addition to their 1974-75 state budget support to make up for the revenue which would have been raised by a local one-mill property tax levy.

The property tax support was wiped out last July by a State Supreme Court decision.

"We will be almost out of money by the first of February," Bob Schleiger, executive director of the statewide system of technical community colleges, told the committee.

"Only one area will come close to meeting its February payroll."

The nearly $6 million in anticipated property tax support represents almost 30% of the $20.9 million total budget for the system.

Nearly $11 million in state tax support was included in the current budget. More than $3 million was budgeted from tuition and other cash receipts.

The colleges, Schleiger said, have experienced a 17% increase in full-time programs during the last year.

Enrollment exceeds 23,000, with nearly 10,000 involved in full-time credit programs.

The budget deficiency request includes $15 million for the metropolitan (Omaha) area; $14 million for the southeast, $13 million for the central area, $745,000 for the northeast; $556,000 for the mid-plains, and $470,000 for the western area.

Meanwhile, the Department of Public Institutions asked the Appropriations Committee for a $781,245 general fund budget addition to help make up a projected $2.8 million deficit in funding for mental health programs.

The remainder of the deficit can be handled through a transfer of surplus funds from the Beatrice State Home for the mentally retarded, the committee was told.

Executive budget aide Don Leuenberger told senators he will probably recommend "something similar" to the $781,245 figure for inclusion in Gov. J. James Exon's deficit appropriations bill.

The projected decrease in patient population at the three mental health regional centers has not materialized, the committee was told.

Instead, Acting Institutions Director Jack Cleavenger noted, there has been "a leveling off of the populations." Meanwhile, inflation has added about 11% to costs.

Heart Fund Collectors Fake

Warnings against unauthorized requests for contributions to the Heart Fund were issued Monday by Heart Fund officials.

According to Steve Flanders, Lancaster County Heart Fund chairman, his office has received reports of persons with no connection to the fund, who are soliciting contributions in southwest Lincoln.

Flanders said Heart Fund workers will not start collecting contributions until Feb. 23.

FBI To Report On Information On Congressmen

Washington (UPI) — The Justice Department Monday ordered FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley to prepare a report, which may go to President Ford, on the kind of information on congressman the bureau has in its files, officials said.

The FBI had earlier disclosed that its files contain information on the personal lives of congressmen, including reports on their "loyalty, character and reputation."

The Kelley report was expected to be turned over to Deputy Atty. Gen. Laurence Silberman within a couple of days.

Silberman has been in touch with the White House legal counsel's office on the issue, and White House press secretary Ron Nessen said if Silberman thinks the report should go to Ford directly it will.

The congressmen named as having derogatory personal information on them in the FBI files include:

Senate majority leader Mike Mansfield, Sens. Lawrence Weicker, R-Conn., Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., George McGovern, D-S.D., Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and Adlai Stevenson Jr., D-Ill., and House Speaker Carl Albert and Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., former chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee.

An FBI spokesman said the FBI does not compile such information into actual dossiers on individual members of Congress. But he said the bureau maintains a cross-reference index card file showing each time a congressman is mentioned in any investigatory file.

If the FBI ever wants to find information about a particular member of Congress, the spokesman said, it would use the index card system to locate the various files containing references to that individual.

The bureau's disclosure followed a Washington Post report that the FBI under the late Director J. Edgar Hoover compiled files on congressmen, including reports on their drinking habits and illicit sexual activities. The newspaper quoted former Hoover aides as saying the information was neither obtained by direct surveillance nor kept for blackmail purposes.

Reports of the files triggered a sharp reaction on Capitol Hill.

Rep. Robert W. Kastenmeier, D-Wis., one of several congressmen who called for an investigation of the FBI, said the bureau had lied to Congress in the past when asked if such files existed. He called it a cover-up "as insidious as Watergate."

But Atty. Gen. William B. Saxbe, acknowledging that the FBI sometimes obtained material on congressmen but denying there were any secret files, said: "If they're looking for another Watergate, they're going to be disappointed."

Journal-Star Seeks To Buy Block

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

Two plans for development of the Haymarket Square block located on the fringe of the downtown were referred to the city administration and Downtown Advisory Committee (DAC) Monday by the City Council.

The city is proposing to lease the land, the site of the old police and fire stations, from 9th to 10th, Q to R. Plans were submitted by the Francis Building Co. of Sioux City, which proposes to build a six-story motel-convention center, and by the Journal-Star Printing Co., which proposes to expand its newspaper operations.

Lease Not Wanted

In a new development Monday, the newspapers' attorney David Tews said the company is not interested in leasing the land, as proposed by the council. Tews said the company's board of directors has expressed an interest in buying the land.

If the company were to lease the land, Tews said, a conflict of interest might result, since the two daily newspapers report on the city's activities and editorial writers comment on city officials' actions.

Lincoln Evening Journal Editor Joe R. Seacrest said, "We do not feel comfortable as a newspaper entering into such an agreement with the city."

In selling the land to the company or other private developer, Tews said, there could be no strings attached by the city.

The council agreed last summer to lease the property in order to control the development on the block billed by DAC as the entryway to downtown Lincoln.

If the city sold the land to the Journal-Star, Tews said, plans call for construction of a landscaped surface parking lot with 214 stalls. Eventually, the company would expand its newspaper operations onto the land.

Easement Asked

The company also requested an easement under Q St. to connect the block with the present Journal-Star Building, directly south.

The second proposal was submitted by Rober. Krueger and John Holtze of Sioux City, who said a Rodeway Inn motel would be constructed on the land.

Krueger said the motel would have 160 rooms, restaurant, lounge and meeting rooms.

Krueger also asked the city to vacate the south 50 feet of R St. to allow construction of the complex.

He placed the cost of the mini-convention center at more than $2 million.

The Sioux City firm proposes to lease the land for 65 years, at an annual net rental of $32,000.

In referring the proposals to city departments for a report, the council directed that a recommendation be made by March 1.

City Atty. Dick Wood noted that if the council decided to sell the land, the city would have to readvertise and announce its intent to sell the property instead of leasing it.

More Aid Extended To Housing Market

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — The administration extended aid to the hard-pressed housing market Monday by cutting the maximum rate on government-insured home loans and earmarking $1.1 billion for programs to aid the poor, elderly and handicapped.

In announcing the moves to the annual convention of National Association of Home Builders, James T. Lynn, secretary of housing and urban development, said the actions reflect the President Ford's commitment to a "decent home and a suitable living environment for every American."

The lowering of the ceiling on Federal Housing Administration and Veteran Administration loans brought the rate down to 8.5 per cent from 9 per cent. The effect is to provide home buyers with a savings of about $11 on the $238 monthly payment needed to pay off a $30,000 loan at the higher rate.

The drop, prompted by steadily falling interest rates as a result of the recession, brought the ceiling to its lowest since last April.

The record interest rates of last summer, combined with a shortage of funds for home lenders and inflated prices for building materials, have brought the home construction industry to its lowest level in eight years.

Starts on new housing units totaled an annual rate of 888,000 last month compared to 2 million for 1973, despite about $25 billion in federal money pumped into the market over the last year to provide cut-rate loans for home buyers.

For people who are too poor to buy a house or even pay the market rates for rents, Lynn announced his department is allocating $900 million to be paid to landlords as a subsidy for poor tenants.

Lynn estimated the money will aid from 350,000 to 385,000 families.

It will be the first new federal money for direct subsidies to low-income renters since former President Richard M. Nixon suspended applications for HUD low-income programs in January, 1973.

Under the revised program, poor families will shop for their own housing and pay rent amounting to between 15 per cent and 25 per cent on their incomes. What they pay depends on what the government considers to be the cost of living for their area.

The government will pay landlords the difference between tenants' share and what HUD considers to be a fair market rate for apartments in the area.

Lynn said HUD is also ready to parcel out $215 million appropriated by Congress for loans which would support construction of rental housing for the elderly and handicapped.

Lynn estimated the money could help finance 10,000 units over the next two years.

Under the program, the government makes loans to non-profit organizations which develop projects for use by the elderly and handicapped. The loans would be at the same rate the government borrows money, currently less than 8 per cent compared to the 10 per cent or more developers must pay for construction loans.

Lynn also announced that government-backed insurance would now be provided for loans obtained on existing apartment buildings.

In the past, FHA insurance for loans was available only for newly constructed rental and single-family units.

Lynn said the expansion of the insurance will make it easier for landlords to obtain mortgages on their existing buildings so they can build new structures.

WALLACE... takes oath from brother, Judge Jack Wallace.

Wallace To Run Again

Montgomery, Ala. (UPI) — George C. Wallace — looking ahead to his next presidential campaign — stood near the spot where he once vowed segregation would live forever and pledged Monday to be governor of "all the people of Alabama."

Inaugurated as the state's first three-term governor, Wallace told a crowd of supporters, "I will continue my interest in national affairs. I will say to those who don't like it, if they don't like it they can do what they want to do about it."

With the first black ever to serve in a governor's cabinet sitting to his right, Wallace said, "We have shown that government in this state has cared for all of the people of our state, black and white."

"We in Alabama might be able to give some courses to people in other areas of the country on how to get along."

Three times during his address, Wallace referred to what he called the "unity of all our people."

Although paralyzed from the waist down by an assassination attempt during the 1972 presidential campaign, Wallace stood in a special platform, gesturing frequently in the cold wind.

Aides said the governor was eager to impress Democratic Party leaders that he is a reasonable, healthy man capable of heading the party's ticket in 1976.

Consistent with his new theme that he has never been against black people, Wallace said, "Twelve years ago we were much misunderstood."

Wallace was first elected governor in 1962 and drew national attention a short while later with his "segregation forever" inauguration speech and his futile "stand in the school house door" in an attempt to block integration of the University of Alabama.

Caucus CIA Vote Rebuff To Stennis

•The New York Times

Washington — The Senate Democratic Caucus voted Monday, 45 to 7, to set up a bipartisan select committee, similar to the one established after Watergate, to investigate all aspects of foreign and domestic operations by the Central Intelligence Agency and other government intelligence units.

The favorable vote amounted to a major setback for Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, whose long-time dominance on military matters in the Senate had gone unchallenged until Monday's caucus meeting.

"What happened today was a kind of revolution," explained Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, who emerged as a key spokesman during the recent debate over the Senate's obligation to improve its observation of intelligence matters.

The caucus approved a resolution providing for the Senate leadership to name seven to 11 members to serve on the special committee, which initially will have a $750,000 budget and nine months in which to complete its work.

Several senators said after the three-hour meeting that no restrictions were placed on the make-up of the panel, although there was general agreement that senators with no biases on national security should serve.

It was this issue that directly led to Stennis's rebuff. He did not challenge the obvious desire of the Democratic caucus to approve the select committee, Senate sources said, but instead argued that the committee should be composed of senators now serving on the Armed Services, Appropriations or Foreign Relations Committees.

Stennis, was reported to have made an impassioned plea to prevent what he said would be the destruction of the CIA, stemming from an inquiry into the domestic spying.

But Stennis received only a handful of votes. He later hinted to newsmen that might oppose the special committee when it comes to the Senate floor for passage later this week.

Committee members will not be named until after the vote, Senate sources said.

3 Terrorists Land In Iraq

PARIS (AP) — Three Arab terrorists aboard a French jetliner landed for a second time in Baghdad early Tuesday and gave themselves up to Iraqi authorities, an Air France spokesman reported. The terrorists were permitted to leave France after a bloody siege at Orly Airport and had crossed the Mideast seeking sanctuary.

The spokesman said the volunteer crew aboard the Air France Boeing 707 was safe.

The plane had landed in Baghdad for the first time on Monday but was allowed only to refuel. It then took off, but a number of Mideast nations closed their airports to it.

The Arab gunmen tried to attack an Israeli jumbo jet of Israel's El Al Airlines at Orly on Sunday. A policeman thwarted the scheme when he spotted one of the Arabs and shot at him starting a gun battle that left 21 persons injured. The terrorists seized 10 hostages and held them in an airport rest room for 18 hours until diplomats arranged their release unharmed in exchange for the escape jet.

Propping Up Social Security With Medicare Fund Proposed

Washington (UPI) — A Social Security advisory council has voted to recommend diverting Medicare funds to support old age and retirement benefits.

General revenues would be used in substantial amounts for the first time to replace the diverted Medicare funds. Eventually, the revenues would give the hospital portion of the health insurance program for the aged some of the financing.

NEWSPAPERARCHIVE

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two Senate Democrats said Monday they will oppose President Ford's proposal to increase oil import tariffs and lift domestic oil price controls.

Sens. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts and Henry M. Jackson of Washington said they will introduce a resolution to delay the moves suggested by the President.

The resolution would have to be passed by both houses of Congress and signed by Ford, however.

It would delay for 90 days any increase in oil import fees, tariffs or quotas and would postpone Ford's proposal to decontrol some domestic oil prices April 1.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., meanwhile, said the President's economic program falls "far short of the magnitude of the crisis." Javits proposed to restrict oil imports and bar a tax rebate for families earning more than $25,000.

Ford To Meet Press

Washington (AP)—President Ford will hold a nationally broadcast news conference at 1 p.m. CST Tuesday, his first such session in more than six weeks, the White House announced Monday.

Javits also called for creation of one million public-service jobs this year, at a cost of $7.8 billion. And he urged that the Council on Wage and Price Stability be given authority to delay any inflationary wage or price hike for 60 days.

He said Ford's proposal for a rebate on 1974 taxes of up to $1,000 per family should be scaled down to limit the refund to families earning $25,000 or less per year. This would cut the maximum rebate to $600.

In the energy area, Javits said, import quotas should be imposed and the price of old domestic oil, now frozen at $5.25 a barrel, should be allowed to rise $1 per year for the next five years.

Kennedy and Jackson said their move is designed to give Congress a reasonable opportunity to consider the impact of what they estimated to be a $32 billion a year energy price increase on consumers, business, unemployment and inflation.

Kennedy and Jackson said they support other parts of the President's energy program outlined in his State of the Union message to Congress last Wednesday.

These include standby emergency rationing authority, a system of strategic oil reserves, improving automobile gas mileage, tax credit and other assistance to insulate homes, assistance to low income families in meeting increased fuel bills, and a long term energy conservation policy.

Food Stamp Cutback Attacked By Lawyers

Washington (UPI) — Consumer attorneys Monday opened a legal counterattack against an administration order reducing food stamp benefits for the needy by an estimated $645 million annually.

Attorneys for Consumers Union, in a suit filed in federal court, asked that the order be stricken. They said it violates a legal requirement that the amount poor people must pay for food stamp allotments be kept at "reasonable" levels.

Under the administration order issued last week and effective March 1, most of the 5.4 million needy people receiving food stamps will be required to pay 30% of their adjusted net income to purchase the allotments. At present, the cash payments average about 23% of net income.

The increase will have the greatest impact on single and two-person households. An elderly widow with net income of $106 a month, for example, now pays $18 in cash for a $46 monthly stamp allotment but will have to pay $31.50 after March 1.

The suit filed by Consumers Union attorneys was brought on behalf of the National Council of Senior Citizens, the Philadelphia Welfare Rights Organization and two elderly disabled low-income widows — Clara Finch of Hartford, Conn., and Carrie King of Washington, D.C., according to spokesmen.

A spokesman said the administration action violates the food stamp act in two ways — by allegedly setting stamp purchase costs above the "reasonable investment" level and by reducing the value of free food stamps to "token" levels for some recipients.

High Court To Hear Topless Dancer Case

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court agree Monday to hear an appeal which could affect the power of cities and towns to regulate topless dancers.

The justices will review a decision of the federal appeals court striking down an anti-topless ordinance in North Hempstead.

It "would tend to find"—but stopped short of ruling—that the topless dancing was a form of expression protected by the Constitution.

Whether or not that was true, the judges said, the ordinance was so loosely drawn that it would have prohibited conduct which is protected.

The ordinance was adopted by the North Hempstead town board on July 10, 1973, in response to what officials said was a "public outcry" against topless dancers.

It prohibits any operator of a cabaret or bar from allowing female entertainers to appear "with breasts ... uncovered or so thinly draped as to appear uncovered."

IUD To Be Off Market

WASHINGTON (AP) — The A. H. Robins Co. said Monday it is pulling off the market all Dalkon Shield intrauterine contraceptive devices (IUDs) of the type involved in 14 deaths and at least 219 cases of infected abortions.

The Richmond, Va., firm termed its action a "market withdrawal" and not a recall because it was undertaken voluntarily without Food and Drug Administration pressure.

Robins said it has dispatched its salesmen to pick up an unknown number of old, unused Dalkon Shields from wholesalers, physicians, hospitals and family planning organizations and give refunds. The same offer will apply to the U.S. Agency for International Development for all Dalkon Shields still remaining in this country which it purchased for distribution in impoverished nations, a spokesman said.

Last month the Food and Drug Administration lifted a six-month-old ban on Dalkon Shields but imposed new marketing restrictions, including a registry of new patients so that adverse reactions can be measured accurately and fully.

The FDA directed the firm to replace the multifilament string on the plastic, crab-shaped device with a monofilament tail.

Heavy Load Means Money

Max Quarterman of Hazeldene in economically troubled England has found a way to earn as much as $960 a week: he works extra hard. In fact, he jugs while he carries a double-sized hod holding 175 pounds of wet plaster, three times as much as other plasterer's assistants. He also skips tea and lunch breaks and, with two other industrious members of his team, manages to plaster four houses a week to other plasterers' one or two.

Federal Reserve Acts To Boost Money Supply

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a further move to increase the nation's money supply, the Federal Reserve Board announced Monday it is cutting the amount of money banks must keep on hand to back up deposits.

The board said the effect of the action would be to release about $11 billion in money previously held in reserve.

The move was the latest in a series of steps by the nation's central bank to make the flow of money easier within the recession-troubled economy.

The board has lowered two times within as many months the borrowing rate for banks within the system. The rate now stands at 7.25 per cent compared to the record 8 per cent rate in November.

British Kill Tunnel Plan

LONDON (AP) — Citing economic woes, Britain announced Monday it is pulling out of a plan to build a $4.6 billion tunnel with France linking the two countries under the English Channel.

"The present project is now dead," Environment Secretary Anthony Crosland told the House of Commons. However, he said he thought a tunnel would be built some time and "probably within my lifetime."

Crosland said the 30-mile project is being abandoned because the government is determined to hold down public expenditure in view of Britain's economic difficulties.

He said cancellation will cost the government about $46 million. Abandonment had been widely forecast in the British press and shares in Channel Tunnel Investments, the British holding company for the project, slumped earlier Monday from about $1 to 50 cents.

Times Demand Answers

As President Ford's program flows in bill form to the Congress this week, the American people will be looking for answers from law-makers to what ails the nation at this time. In our opinion, that means a program that will spur the private economy but avoid further inflationary pressures.

The President's program of lower income taxes and higher petroleum taxes is certainly an effort in the right direction. The big debate here ought to be in the area of the income tax cuts, not if there is to be such a cut, but how it is to be accomplished.

Whether it is an across-the-board reduction or a scaled reduction, it would go a long way toward boosting the confidence and real spendable income of the American people. At the same time, higher gasoline fuel oil prices in the relatively modest range proposed by Ford should tend to conserve on our consumption of this essential resource.

In the past, this newspaper has not been overly concerned with federal budget deficits but we believe the deficits that are a part of the President's program constitute the weakest part of that program. He is talking about a deficit of $30 billion this year and $45 billion next year.

Roads Program Reversed

One might have been classified as a little weakminded had he suggested a few years ago that the Nebraska Roads Department would be concerned at this time with the overbuilding of highways. Until recently, all the emphasis has been on the construction of new and bigger highways.

But State Engineer Thomas Doyle is now looking at a new set of demands. What he sees is a 55-mile-per-hour speed limit and fewer cars on the highways, two factors that drastically change his attitude.

Highways once unsafe for heavy and high speed traffic are suddenly becoming adequate for today's needs. Where a four-lane, divided highway might have been needed in past projections, a lesser facility will now fill the bill.

That is dramatic evidence of the change taking place in the lives of people today. Clearly, the private automobile has been dealt a setback after years of occupying a top priority slot in public affairs.

Very properly, Doyle has said that safety will not be sacrificed in any road work of the future. That means new highway work will deal with the realities of

We simply do not believe that this is the time to begin rolling up such huge red-ink figures. How can they be anything but highly inflationary?

It is in this area that Congress is most likely to incur the wrath of the electorate. Such will be its fate if it refuses to heed the President's call for a tight rein on new federal spending.

We would go along with Congress on key spending programs to spur employment and to assist such essential industries as housing. It is up to Congress, however, to see to it that other federal spending is reduced.

It is simply inconceivable that the federal deficit cannot be held to something less than that which Ford has suggested. It can be held to less than this if members of Congress will forget old time politics and use the spending ax on non-essential categories.

This is a time for doing things, such as federal program curtailments, that might not have been in order had it not been for the current economic disarray. But just as there was a time when big deficits were of little consequence, we now have a time when they are of significant and unwanted consequence. Business as usual is not what we need in Washington at this time.

a moderating volume of vehicles and lower speeds but will continue to heed the demands of a modern age.

Thus, new construction with fewer curves and hills and some limitations on access ought to continue to be the order of the day. The change in demand should be a golden opportunity to improve the quality of roads in Nebraska.

What it all boils down to is the fact that, at least for the moment, we can concentrate on quality rather than quantity. This may well mean the elimination in the state of a number of highways of questionable safety. These roads may now be given the improvement funds that might otherwise never have been found for them.

Doyle is not talking about a program that totally reverses all past patterns but one, simply, that deals realistically with current conditions. Our priorities ought to change in keeping with new facts of the times and that is the state of affairs today in road-building.

Whether we ever return to the days of big volume demands, the situation at the moment is about as drastic a reversal of form as we have ever witnessed.

Fourth And Final

WASHINGTON — These are hard days for prophets, but despite the price of gas and other nuisances, the world is moving into the last quarter of the 20th Century, anyway. Whether you regard 1975 as the last year of the third quarter or the first year of the last quarter, the temptation to look to the future is irresistible, if only to get some perspective on the gloomy present.

One consoling thought is that most of the prophets were wrong about the first three quarters. They were optimistic at the turn of the century, but the first quarter produced World War I, mortally wounded the old empires, and spawned the Soviet revolution.

They were optimistic again in 1925, but the second quarter brought on the great economic depression, the second world war, the final collapse of the major empires, and the spread of communism through Eastern Europe and across China to the Sea of Japan.

Then the pessimists took over with their apocalyptic visions of new and more horrible nuclear wars, but in spite of the conflicts in Korea, Southeast Asia, and the Middle East, the third quarter has been, as the Economist of London observed this past week, "by far the most successful in history."

"During these past 25 years," it remarked, "real gross world product has more than trebled, so that we have added more in these years than in all previous aeons of our planet. Better, the growth has gone to many of the right places. In 1950, the average life expectancy of an Indian was probably in the 30's and it is now believed to be in the 50's."

"There has been a worldwide surge in education and in literacy . . . in all continents other than Asia and Africa. It is now unlikely that a mad dictator will start a war."

This is not to minimize the complicated, distracting and dangerous problems that trouble thoughtful men and women at the opening of the last quarter, but despite the alarming growth of the human race, the shortages of food and fuel and the general derangement of world politics, economics and finances, it is hard to believe that the world is likely to see in these next 25 years anything like the upheavals and disasters of the previous 75.

The things that agitate the United States at present — unemployment, high prices, fuel shortages, inflation, the inequality of women, feeble leadership and a general distrust in its institutions — are all correctable. None of them is beyond the power, resources, and imagination of the nation.

The essential reforms have already begun. This city is a much healthier place than it was a year ago. It has shed many of its illusions about heroic men, limitless resources of food and fossil fuel. It is beginning to explore the possibilities and shortcomings of the earth as it explored the mysteries of outer space.

McGovernism—The Second Wave

WASHINGTON — Although the House Democratic caucus' decision to dump Rep. Hebert of Louisiana and Rep. Poage of Texas from their positions as chairmen of the Armed Services and Agriculture Committees will probably be no more than a footnote in the annals of Congress, it should be of enormous consequence in the chronicles of party politics.

Three years ago, the first wave of McGovernism swept the Democratic presidential convention into the hands of quota-wielding reformers who promptly unseated old-line leaders like Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley. Now a second wave of McGovernism appears to be roaring through the House of Representatives. New 94th Congress liberals, riding high, are doing unto old-line Democratic committee chairmen as they did unto Mayor Daley in 1972.

The upshot is that moderate and conservative Democrats who thought the McGovern phenomenon a fluke can no longer kid themselves. It is anything but a fluke. The Democratic Party is in the throes of fundamental change, and what happened on one level in Miami is now happening again on Capitol Hill.

Dixie is bearing the brunt. In less than a month, the South has lost three key committee chairmanships — Ways and Means, Agriculture, and Armed Services. You can practically see the liberal caucus' spittle on the map of Texas, Louisiana and Arkansas, dripping off the Ozarks and Ouachita Mountains onto the plains and bayous.

Nor is the purge of moderates and conservatives confined to the South. The deposed Democratic Caucus chairman, B. F. Sisk, hails from Fresno in California's Great Central Valley. Other Northern moderates are also uneasy.

Moreover, despite the new Congress' disclaimers of militant liberalism, the political geography is clear enough — the legislators being purged come from the same Southern, Western and ethnic constituencies that cringed at presidential McGovernism in 1972. Now, there is no doubt that the McGovern constituency — led by Caucus Chairman Phillip Burton of San Francisco — has also taken over the Democratic Party in the House of Representatives. The party trend is irreversible.

Unfortunately for the Southern bloc, led by Louisiana's Joe Waggoner, Jr. they can no longer plausibly think of joining forces with the Republicans. That might have worked in January, 1973, when Republicans and Dixiecrats had a House majority, but it won't work today.

Mexico's Oil Rush Is On

STATE OF THE WORLD

VILLAHERMOSA, Mexico — From the northernmost slope of Alaska to the southernmost reaches of the hemisphere, the oil rush is on. It is at the heart of the power game on which the future of the nation, the chance of war or peace, can turn.

Here in the capital of the state of Tabasco, and in the neighboring state of Chiapas, Mexico has come up with a large bargaining chip in the international oil game. While the great discovery here in the Southeast has been compared in its potential with the reserves of the Persian Gulf, officials of PEMEX are more modest. They equated with the Maracaibo fields in Venezuela, putting that country into third or fourth place as a petroleum exporter. It is rated bigger than anything in Texas or Oklahoma.

But the executives of PEMEX, the government corporation that took over all oil exploration and development from foreign-owned companies in 1938, acknowledge that they are only at the beginning of development of the sea of oil lying under jungle and swamp. Progress in two years has been remarkable.

Production in the south zone, as denoted on PEMEX maps, is put at 450,000 barrels a day. Virtually all of this is new production coming from 56 wells in four separate fields.

This is said to be sufficient to cover Mexico's needs and leave a margin, when other producing fields are included, to make this country an exporter rather than an importer of petroleum. According to Antonio Dovali Jaime, director of PEMEX, the exportable surplus in 1975 will be 110,000 barrels a day.

This is far short of the card of admission to the Oil Exporting and Producing Countries, OPEC. That card of admission is the export of 400,000 barrels a day and only Venezuela and Ecuador in Latin America qualify. But in the not too distant future Mexico cannot be ruled out. In fact a high government official told me that within two years, Mexico would be perhaps the largest exporter in the hemisphere.

According to a source with every reason to know, the discovery is equal to that of the oil on Alaska's north slope. The latter is estimated publicly at 30 billion barrels and privately it is put as high as 80 billion barrels.

If the Chiapas-Tabasco proves out at anything like this, the bonanza should overcome Mexico's balance of payments deficit and bolster the domestic economy. This stroke of good luck comes for President Luis Echeverria and his hard-pressed administration at a fortuitous moment.

There is no question here of ownership by foreign exploiters. In 1938, under president Lazaro Cardenas, Mexico nationalized the holdings of U.S., British and Dutch oil properties, with compensation duly provided over a long period of years.

F.D.R. wisely resisted the clamor to intervene with force to restore the foreign owners. The government corporation, PEMEX, has, until recently, kept prices down below the market level as a subsidy to industry and the motorist. This has been an important factor in Mexico's large tourist trade with motorists from the United States. But prices are now sharply higher with widespread grumbling one result.

Whereas it once cost from $4 to $5 to fill the tank of a Chevrolet station wagon, it is now double that.

Mexico intends to take the lead in forming a Latin-American Oil Exporting Organization to control sales volume. While it will be some time before exports hit the 400,000 barrels a day level when Mexico can become a member of OPEC, the government intends to send an observer to sit in on OPEC's meetings. The assurance given Washington is that while the price set by the OPEC cartel will not be broken by Mexico, the influence of Mexico's rapidly developing export surplus will be to try to modify the price quadrupled by the Arab oil producers.

This is a boom town that has some resemblance to boom towns in the great oil strikes in the United States. With 2,000 new workers, many bringing their families and more to come, the end of the boom is nowhere in sight. Housing is scarce, rents correspondingly high and prices beat even those in the cities where the pressure of inflation is so strong.

With the fierce heat and the heavy rains of summer, life here is far from pleasant. But as with booming communities everywhere, the hope of high wages and quick profits is a magnet despite the handicaps.

PEMEX has authority under its government charter over all oil exploration and development. One hitch here is the insistence of a powerful politico that no exploration can be carried out on his large farm which is in the center of the great discovery. The beliefs of PEMEX petroleum engineers is that there can be at least 10 important producing wells on this farm and while they foresee some legal delays, they are confident that eventually the land will be opened up to drilling.

An hour and a half away by car from Villahermosa is Palenque, site of the ruins of a once-splendid Mayan civilization. The stucco frescoes on the imposing ruins have a strong East Indian feeling. The central tower is said to have been a tower of meditation.

The contrast with a boom town of this oil strike could hardly be greater. The shadow of the past has often seemed to haunt a land beset by bloodshed and revolution. The new industrial development with oil the center is the answer to sneering critics who dismiss Mexico as another banana republic.

WILLIAM SAFIRE

WASHINGTON — In the harder times ahead, the only thing we have to fear is fearlessness itself.

Stout-hearted economists, urged on by political leaders determined to appear confident and editorialists who like to be bold, are preparing solutions for the present recession based on what they learned from previous recessions.

Long ago, when even conservative economist Milton Friedman asserted "We are all Keynesians now," the general theory put forward by Lord Keynes was, by and large, universally accepted. When there is slack in the economy, the role of government is to move in and take up that slack leaning hard against the business cycle that means tax cuts (adding to demand), more government spending and an easier money policy by the federal reserve.

That not only seems logical but it has been used effectively in the Keynesian era. It requires the economy to act sensibly. In hard times, prices should come down or at least slow their rise and equally important the demand for credit should drop as businessmen hunker down and take fewer risks.

In a Keynesian world, the government borrows to pay for its deficits without driving up interest rates because businesses are not competing for the money. That combined with tax cuts reinvigorates the economy generating more tax income and thereby lessening the deficit. As economic activity picks up, the government then moves the other way raising taxes and lowering the rate of growth of spending and prevents an unrestrained boom.

The trouble is we may no longer be living in a Keynesian world. In a non-Keynesian world, prices do not respond to layoffs and the drop in demand partly because commodities and energy are held high by shortage or cartel.

In a non-Keynesian world, the demand for credit continues high even well into a recession. For example, it costs more to finance inventories: What is more, the long period of depressed earnings makes it hard for companies to build out of profits. And so interest rates stay high.

What happens when you have high interest rates over a long period? The construction industry, the nation's largest, is depressed. The stock market, ordinarily the place for businesses to raise money, also stays down: Who will buy stocks when the rate of return on savings is so high?

If we are to have the huge deficits the President predicts — $40 billion next year and that prediction is on the conservative side, Ford's being a conservative — then we will most likely have a continuation of high interest rates. That could lock us into a recession far longer than usual.

Why don't we simply pass a law holding down interest rates? Because there are some economic forces that not even the Congress and the president can command. If you are not willing to pay the price of money, nobody is going to lend you money.

Well, then, how about getting the Federal Reserve to increase the money supply to take care of both business needs and the big new government deficits? In fact the money supply has been increasing at about a 4% rate in the last six months as the inter-bank lending rate has been coming down from over 13% in last July to 7 1/4% today. This should and probably will be speeded up to an annual rate of 5% or 6%, but the Federal Reserve has not wanted to over-stimulate for fear of having to suddenly raise the rates that have been lowering steadily. Such a change of direction would upset a great many people.

We cannot depend on the Fed to do the whole job for us. We cannot reasonably ask for the kind of stimulation that would lower short-term rates and not long-term rates. If we give up the fight against inflation, we might just be painting ourselves into a corner of recession as well.

The rush is on to distribute money back to taxpayers. Within bounds — and $12 billion is a good bound — that makes sense. The rush is also on however to plunge into a deficit the likes of which we have never seen with a spending spree that not only makes liberal hearts happy but makes conservative hearts think it is necessary in its economics.

Life Begins At Forty:

Older People's Role In Society Defined

By JOANNE FARRIS

The 1960s marked a strong pattern of social orientation toward the youth culture in the United States. Now, halfway through the decade of the 70s, we are seeing a slow, perceptible change in that orientation. Partly this is because the numbers of young and older persons are shifting, and we are learning that the senior segment of our society is suffering from neglect. Too many poor, old people are starving or shivering in a winter when they do not have enough money to pay the high prices of food or meet the ever-rising fuel costs.

In addition to their physical needs the youth oriented '60s also ignored their psychological need to be seen as sharers in the society, not shunted off to the side or pushed off to one side "out of the way."

The mid-70s are teaching us that the old have much to teach to the young. From their enriched experience and understanding of life they can minister to personal relationships between generations. In fact, the old, if they are willing to assume the task, can give back to our impersonal society the soul it lacks.

The older one is the more value one places on human dialogues, the perplexing eternal questions of life, death, meaning, purpose, what we are doing here, bother us all. But, once the dialogue with the old is undertaken, the young segments of society may find tentative answers as the old articulate their beliefs, ideas, and perhaps fears regarding the destiny of man.

More than most of us, the old realize just how basic for all of us is the need to exist in the thought and affection of another. This is a concrete level of existence from the cradle to the grave, and the wise old may help the alienated young to learn that the capacity for intimacy is one of the major developmental tasks of life.

Stable interpersonal relationships are vital to our well-being, and those who do not discover that early may find it too difficult to establish a close, confident relationship in life, when, perchance, they may need it most.

Other societies look up to their old persons. Some have a social hierarchy in which the eldest is the most revered and respected. Russia, for example, has a word equivalent to "long-lived" rather than "elderly" in its vocabulary, and Russians have profound regard for those who have lived long. Korea is another nation where the vocabulary reflects profound veneration and respect for those who have lived for many years.

New words will not help Americans revise their thought and action patterns about the long-lived, but new ways may result from our increased awareness of the fact that more than 20 million Americans are over 65 now, and as our lifespans lengthen the percentage of our population that is over 65 will continue to grow, especially in view of the declining birth rate.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SIDNEY OMARR

Forecast For Tuesday

Libra often mistaken for Scorpio; John-Carson Gemini mistaken for Cancer; Jane Russell Leo who could be mistaken for an other sign; Mae West, Cancer who could be no other sign; Art Linkletter, Capricorn with typical down-to-earth manner; Robert Stack, Young lady with typical Sagittarius attributes; Caroline Kennedy. The signs have their signatures, often exemplified by celebrities we know.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Money, personal possessions, new approach collecting and saving — this is spotlighted. Original, independent approach gets results. Be dynamic, not arrogant. Cooperate with Leo. Check budget requirements. You are due for reward.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Lunar cycle is high — take initiative. Study Aries message for valid hint. Exclude confidence. Lead rather than follow. Bring forth creative resources. Take a chance on your own attitudes. Envious associates will "come over to your side." Know it and act confident.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Fine for attending theatrical performance. You may be visiting someone "behind the scenes." Examine your "fears," doubts. You will be able to eradicate element which has been destructive. Message becomes increasingly clear.

CANCER (June 21-July 20): Accent on friends, desires, rewards which come from professional endeavors. You will be laughing more than is your custom. Social activity increases. Leave details for another time. Get overall view. Friend with weight problem wants to talk about diet — just talk about it.

LEO (July 21-Aug. 22): One who procrastinates may attempt to discourage you. Adhere to principles. Accept personal ambitions. Stick to game plan. Check time points — read between the lines. Deal with Taurus-Scorpio persons. Promotion may be on agenda.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Compliments at common-carrier. Make travel plans. Write correspondence — accent advertising and publishing. Submit concept format. Gemini, Sagittarius and another Virgo could figure prominently. Review philosophy.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Question of purchase or sales could arise. Family member desires luxury item that deters budget. Compromise is indicated between what is new and a trade transaction. You have chance to get beneath surface values into real thing.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Embodiment of sex, legalities, formal agreements, getting together with those who hold views that oppose your own. If single, there is talk of marriage. Married or single, you fear for doubt in honesty or co-operation effort.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Practical affairs dominate. Investments of time and money are considered. Basic services are available. You are given additional responsibility. Get job done — not necessarily by trying to win popularity contest. You understand.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Accent is on change, children, affair of heart. You finish project — and could receive accolades. Gemini, Libra individuals are likely to be in picture. One who is aggressive confesses some fears, doubts. Get going on creative endeavor which reflects your style, taste.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You get to heart of matters. Lovers or pretense are removed. Leo and another Aquarian figure prominently. The structure, costs, ultimate goals are examined. You find out where you stand, why and with whom.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Emphasis is on visits, real-estate, calls, messages and short trip. One who cares for you may not be responsible about wishes. Demands, key is to be diplomatic without opening your right to independence. It's tricky — but you do it.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have working ability, sense of humor, but too much of one sitting — then starve yourself. You require more balance, practicality. Your flights of fancy can be transformed into beautiful creative projects. Gemini, Sagittarius persons play key roles in your life. Your year is very important, features responsibility, business, family changes, additions. If single, you could marry. If married, business for yourself — an addition to family. September will be the most significant month.

Saunders County Homemaker Service Aids Aged, Blind, Disabled

HOMEMAKER HELPS OUT... Mrs. Wilson gets coffee can for Mrs. Thurston.

By JOEL THORSON
Outstate Nebraska Bureau
Ashland — Elderly widow Mrs. Nora Thurston would likely be in a nursing home instead of her own familiar apartment if she didn't have a little occasional help from part-time Saunders County homemaker Mrs. Diana Miller of Mead.

Mrs. Thurston has been losing her sight for more than a year, during which time she has scarcely stepped outdoors. She has no relatives in the area.

Mrs. Miller serves as her "eyes" for an hour or so each week. She reads the older woman's letters to her, helps her pay her bills, does her banking, shops for medicine and groceries, does the laundry and helps with the housework.

"I'm going to try to stay here till next spring," says Mrs. Thurston, who is happy for even that small blessing. "I'd like to stay longer, but I don't know — I'll see."

Everyone Benefits
Not only is Mrs. Thurston happier in her independence, adds Mrs. Miller, but the bed she would otherwise occupy in a nursing home is available for someone who can't live independently — even with assistance.

That, says Mrs. Miller, is the whole idea of the Homemaker Service.

Funded jointly by the federal government (75%) and the state (25%), the service is available to everyone in a participating county who is eligible for aid to the aged, blind and disabled under the Social Security Act, and who is judged in need on the basis of income, resources, age, disability and proximity of relatives.

Social services staffer Mrs. June Egr of Wahoo, who works closely with Mrs. Miller, adds that the service is being broadened to include ADC families. Mrs. Miller gives emergency assistance and homemaker training to a few ADC mothers, although she still devotes most of her time to the elderly.

'Good Right Arm'
Mrs. Miller says she enjoys the work, especially because her clients are so appreciative. She recalls: "The other day I was taking one of my elderly ladies into the store and she told someone, 'I don't know what I'd do without my good right arm.'"

Clients are encouraged to "do for themselves," says Mrs. Miller, adding that some need only to be "checked on to see if they're all right — just to know that someone cares."

Mrs. Miller brings ample qualifications to her job. Holder of a BS in home economics from UNL, she is also the mother of three children. "Sometimes experience is a much more valuable teacher," she says with a chuckle.

Not every county homemaker is as well qualified. Mrs. Egr says The guidelines require that a homemaker be at least 19, healthy and pleasing in appearance, and have experience in caring for both adults and children. She must also be experienced in home management, including everyday household tasks, purchasing and preparing food.

ABP Probably Must Sell Big Texas Plant

Omaha (UPI) — American Beef Packers, Inc., in all probability, will be forced to sell its Dumas, Tex., plant, the largest of its kind in the world, unless it can obtain additional financing, it was learned Monday.

More than one source close to American Beef told UPI that it was a "foregone conclusion" that ABP would have to unload the Dumas plant to meet the conditions of an agreement with its largest secured creditor in a bankruptcy petition, General Electric Credit Corp.

In addition UPI learned that efforts by Omaha public relations executive Harvey Roffman, friend of ABP President Frank H. West, to secure Arab financing were intensifying.

Flurry Of Trips
Roffman flew to Washington

during the weekend on American Beef business and was scheduled to depart Omaha again Tuesday. A Washington attorney formerly associated with the Lebanese Embassy who now acts as embassy consultant has made a "hasty trip" back to Lebanon, UPI learned.

Sources close to ABP said the firm would prefer to put its wholly owned subsidiary, Beefland International of Council Bluffs, Iowa, on the auction block, but there were reported to be no takers.

"People are standing in line to buy the Dumas plant," the American Beef source said. "There would be no trouble selling it."

The Dumas plant opened in September of last year and is billed by American Beef as the world's largest slaughtering and fabricating operation. Original construction costs were estimated at $10.5 million, but the final tab came to $23.5 million — a key factor in ABP's financial problems.

However, the projected cost of a similar plant being constructed by a major competitor, Iowa Beef Processors, Inc., Dakota City, Neb., at Amarillo, Tex., has been placed at $65 million.

'Still A Bargain'
"Even if American Beef sold the Dumas plant for what it is in it," the ABP source said, "it would still be a bargain."

American Beef, another source said, would consider selling the Beefland International facility because of pollution disputes with the city of Council Bluffs.

Meanwhile, an unofficial committee of unsecured creditors organized by the National Livestock Feeders Association was told Monday by General Electric Credit that the firm has "made no long-term financing commitments" to American Beef.

American Beef and General Electric Credit announced an agreement over the weekend involving the paying back or about $41 million in General Electric Credit funds in return for $9 million in loans back to American Beef.

American Beef was charged in the agreement with coming up with some $28 million before General Electric would loan it the money needed to reopen its Oakland, Iowa, plant. An estimated $13 million of that was held by ABP as cash on hand.

Bankers Request Reversal

By United Press International
The Independent Bankers Association of America asked the Nebraska Supreme Court Monday to reverse a lower court decision which okayed the use of grocery store branches by First Federal Savings and Loan of Lincoln.

The request was made in a third party brief filed by the association in a case appealed from the Lancaster County District Court.

In that case, brought by the attorney general's office, the lower court said First Federal could legally offer computer terminal withdrawal and deposit services at two Lincoln Hinky Dinky Stores.

The association told the high court its decision in the case would have an impact beyond Nebraska's borders.

The association said specifically a decision would be important "to the entire sisterhood of states in the Union in terms of the adequacy of state law and states rights to determine, at least partially and significantly, the shape of electronic funds transfers in their jurisdictions."

The association said the only other state where the subject has come up is in Washington. But the association said in that state laws have been developed at the state level to handle the situation.

The attorney general's office challenged the arrangement between First Federal and American Community Stores, the parent company for Hinky Dinky Stores, on the grounds that state banking laws were being violated.

More Than 1,000 Turn Out For UNL Irrigation Course

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Fram Editor
Last year's dry weather produced a bumper crop of interest in this year's two-day irrigation short course which opened Monday at the University of Nebraska Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

"The dry weather always brings in a group that is larger than normal," commented a staff member.

The students — numbering more than 1,000 — are farmers and employees of irrigation equipment companies from Nebraska with a scattering of visitors from other states.

Dr. Bill Splinter, chairman of the Department of Agricultural Engineering at the university, told the group the energy shortage on farms might be solved in part by using coal to power irrigation engines.

Displaying a slide picture of an old-time coal-fired steam tractor, Splinter said, "I hope we don't find ourselves going back to this for doing field work, but I do think we must seriously look at the possibility of coal-fired irrigation systems."

"That smoke they all worry about in the world of environmentalists contains sulphur and nitrogen that plants can use. If we can find a way to incorporate it into the water we are in business," he added.

Another new technique that was tried on a very small scale in Nebraska last year is drip irrigation, which Dean Manbeck, a UNL engineer, described as "similar to the old water torture technique."

"The system developed in Israel is now practiced in many nations that have shortages of water or where labor is very expensive. It is used extensively in California where water is nearly 100 times as expensive as it is here in Nebraska," Manbeck explained.

Scientists have discovered that they can control root growth by controlling where the water is put.

They have also learned that while the system saves water and reduces stress on plants because they always have water, the idea still needs a lot of work.

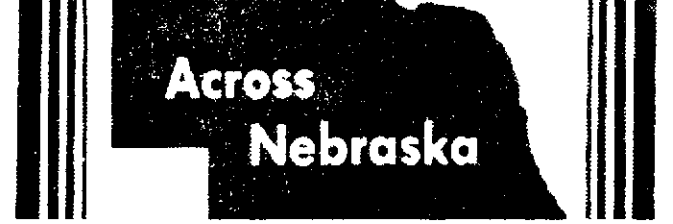

Better Filters Needed
"We really need a better filter system. There are very tiny pin-like holes to allow the water to drip out which are easily plugged, even by chemicals in the water," he said.

Some 80 different gadgets designed to solve the problem of creating an adequate and dependable drip have been on the market with mixed results.

"At this point each system has to be individually engineered for the particular piece of land irrigated, but I do think the idea has a future," Manbeck predicted.

"We had perhaps 2 acres in the state drip irrigated last year, and who knows, we may reach 5 acres this year. That's not much when you note we have 5 million acres under irrigation... but it is a beginning."

The two-day conference will wind up Tuesday afternoon with each participant receiving a book listing all the information presented at the meeting to take home for further study.

Disabled Vets To Confer At York

Omaha — Paul A. Harmon of Omaha, state commander of the Department of Nebraska Disabled American Veterans, has announced an opening meeting of the group will be held Saturday at the Camelot Inn at York. Purpose of the 10 a.m. meeting is to make contact with disabled veterans who need help regarding Veterans Administration benefits. Social Security and state veterans benefits. Two trained and experienced national service officers, stationed at the VA regional office in Lincoln, will interview veterans and their dependents from 8 to 10 a.m. when the meeting will be turned over to a general question and answer session. Additional individual interviews are scheduled from 3 to 5 p.m.

Hydro Plant Generation Drops

Columbus (UPI) — The Loup Public Power District said last summer's drought and warmer than usual temperatures resulted in a lower than average generation last year from its Columbus and Monroe hydroelectric plants. Loup officials said last year's generation totaled 121.9 million kilowatt hours of electricity, compared with an average annual generation of 133 million kilowatt hours. Officials said the warmer than usual winter temperatures prevented an ice cap from forming on the Loup canal.

Home Building Industry Meets Set

The U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development has scheduled five meetings in Nebraska to explain the Community Development and Housing Programs enacted by the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974. These meetings are designed to acquaint the home building industry with the provisions of the new Section 8 Housing program. The meetings are planned at Alliance, Jan. 27, 7:30 p.m. Municipal Building, McCook, Jan. 28, 8 p.m. City Hall; Kearney, Jan. 29, 7:30 p.m. Ramada Inn; Norfolk, Feb. 4, 7:30 p.m. City Auditorium; and Syracuse, Feb. 5, 7:30 p.m., Vet's Club.

Sears Grants Go To State Colleges

Grants totaling more than $11,600 were distributed to 11 privately supported colleges and universities in Nebraska recently by The Sears-Roebuck Foundation, according to a foundation spokesman. In the Lincoln area, Nebraska Wesleyan University, Union College, Doane College and Concordia Teachers College received grants totaling $3,600.

Missouri River Tonnage High

Omaha — Countering the sluggish economic picture nationwide, Missouri River navigation tonnage rebounded to its record levels in 1974. The Missouri River Division Corps of Engineers reported that 2,571,386 tons were shipped between Sioux City and the mouth near St. Louis, Mo., compared with 1973 record tonnage of 2,791,929 tons.

Lambs, Sheep On Feed Hit All-Time Record Low

Wellman estimated the January 1, 1975, sheep and lamb inventory at about 15.5 million head, 6% below the January 1, 1974 figure of 16.5 million. A smaller inventory of breeding ewes is likely to reduce the 1975 lamb crop by 5 to 7%. Barring further liquidation of flocks this year, sheep and lamb slaughter will probably drop another 5 to 7% in 1975.

Against a backdrop of reduced feed grain supplies and lowered hay and forage production, the number of sheep and lambs on feed is the lowest on record.

That's an important aspect of a price and supply outlook report on sheep and lambs by Al Wellman, University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension economist.

The livestock marketing specialist sees the feeder lamb market price as likely to continue relatively weak this winter.

"Prospects look favorable for slaughter lamb prices to peak somewhere between $45-50 per hundredweight in May or June, 1975. Much may depend on a promise of general economic recovery by that time and on price levels of competing meats," Wellman stated.

Fewer Cattle Being Fed In Nebraska

Nebraska cattle feeders were fattening 1,160,000 cattle for slaughter market Jan. 1, down 24% from last year and 3% below last month, according to the State-Federal Division of Agricultural Statistics.

During the October-December quarter, Nebraska feeders marketed 790,000 fat cattle, down 18% from the corresponding period a year earlier. Placements during this same period amounted to 190,000, or a decrease of 11% from 1973.

Cattle on feed Jan. 1 weighing 900 pounds or more totaled 483,000 — down 22% from last year. Those in the 700 to 899 pound group numbered 429,000 — down 23% from last year.

Feeders intend to market 850,000 cattle in the January-March quarter, 6% less than last year's marketings, the bureau said.

She's USDA's Consumer Voice

By LINDA OLIG
Star Staff Writer

Nancy Harvey Steorts regularly leaves her husband and family at home in the Washington, D.C., area, and takes to the road pleading the case of the American consumer before food producers, packers, processors, retailers, even consumers themselves.

She is the voice of the American consumer in the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Wearing the hat of the special assistant for consumer affairs to Secretary of Agriculture, Earl Butz, Mrs. Steorts participated in the Mid-America Red Meat Marketing Conference held here last week.

When she was appointed to the newly created post in July, 1973, Mrs. Steorts became the first consumer representative in any Cabinet-level agency.

Consumer Relations

Her mission here was to help the farmers and the cattle feeders understand the plight of consumers in these uneasy economic times.

Bringing together the two sectors with oftentimes opposing viewpoints — particularly where food is concerned — isn't the easiest job, she said.

But, through information sharing, progress is being made.

"The entire agriculture sector is becoming more responsive to the consumer today," Mrs. Steorts said.

"It needs to be a team effort."

Specifically, Mrs. Steorts emphasized consumers' interest in and demand for less than choice beef.

"The consumer wants a choice in today's supermarket," she said in an interview.

The Lincoln Star 8

Her conclusion was based upon the large number of responses to conferences aimed at getting consumer input on proposed federal regulations pertaining to meat and poultry marketing.

Involved At Beginning

The conferences allowed "the consumer to be involved at the very beginning . . . with industry and government" in formulating "programs and policies that directly affect them," she said.

"Federal regulations are not bedtime reading for most consumers," she said.

Given the opportunity, the consumers spoke out with a powerful voice on three specific proposed regulations that promised to directly affect them in the supermarket: accurate weighing of meat, nutritional labeling and grading changes.

The latter brought the most widespread reaction, she said. "There were more than 5,000 comments, the largest ever."

"The consumer, I think, has always wanted a voice in agriculture," Mrs. Steorts said.

"The public is listening and making itself heard . . . and we at the Department of Agriculture are listening," Mrs. Steorts said.

Now she's taking the consumer's message out to beef feeders. She is telling them that there is interest in having an "alternative to choice beef" — from cattle that has been on feed a shorter length of time.

'Less Expensive'

This good grade beef is "nutritious and less expensive," between 25 and 35 cents a pound less, Mrs. Steorts said.

"We see consumer acceptance to good grade beef in this country," she said.

However, "the consumer must have point of purchase information at the supermarket," she added. "They must know there is a difference." The leaner meat requires different food preparation.

Other alternatives to choice beef are popping up at meat counters across the nation, she said. For example, a supermarket chain in the nation's capital is marketing calf.

"The consumers are accepting it, too," she said. "It has a very delicate flavor. I think it's delicious," Mrs. Steorts added.

Consumers can beat inflation by investing in less expensive cuts and grades of beef, she concluded.

Another way is through home gardening and home canning.

And she's staying on top of that, too, with her eye out for problems consumers just might encounter.

'Significant Increase'

Mrs. Steorts expects "a significant increase" in home gardening over the "6½ million new gardens (that) were planted last year — and that without a presidential request."

She said she has been meeting with manufacturers of home canning equipment and supplies, in "hopes of avoiding any shortages."

Mrs. Steorts also is planning to launch a series of workshops to introduce novices to the intricacies of home canning.

"The consumer has a real voice" in the Agriculture Department, she said. "Now, if they will only use it."

You're Not As 'Moral' As You Think

DEAR ABBY: I recently began an affair with my ex-husband. We've been divorced for five years and have two children, but I never stopped loving him.

We met to discuss the children a few months ago, and I had to admit that the old magic was still there because after he kissed me just once, I was helpless to resist him.

We were divorced because I caught him cheating on me several times. He admitted that he had a weakness for other women that he couldn't overcome, and being a highly moral woman, I couldn't tolerate it.

A year ago, I married a fine older man. He's wonderful to me and the children but he is impotent, and all efforts to correct it have failed.

For some strange reason I don't feel guilty about carrying on with my "ex." I almost feel that under the circumstances I am justified. What's wrong with me? I'm basically a very moral person. What should I do?

FIRST LOVE

D EAR FIRST: You can't have it both ways. If sex is that important to you, perhaps you'd better divorce your husband and re-marry your "ex."

To continue this adulterous affair without guilt feelings indicates that you are not the "moral woman" you claim to be.

Infidelity is not justified under any circumstances, be it your ex-husband's weakness for other women, or your present husband's impotence.

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem involving tact. I don't drive. Each week I go to a meeting with a neighbor who lives a few doors from me. Her silly chatter and vicious gossip bore me; however, it's convenient to be driven by her and I appreciate it.

She recently went on a two-month trip, and in her absence another club member offered to drive me, even though it meant going about five minutes out of her way. We have now become good friends.

My problem is how to get around to telling my neighbor that I don't need her transportation any more for these club meetings. My new friend doesn't care for her gossiping tongue either.

I'm afraid if I offend my neighbor, her vicious tongue will lash out on me.

IN A BIND

DEAR IN: Don't be blackmailed. If you prefer to be driven you your new friend, simply tell your neighbor that you have transportation. How can she hurt you? People of quality pay no attention to vicious gossip. And who else matters?

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I will be celebrating our golden wedding anniversary in March, and our children and grandchildren are going to give us a big celebration, which we are very pleased about.

Now the question: We positively do not want anyone to go out and buy us a present — or even make a donation in our honor. All we want is for those invited to come and rejoice with us.

How should this be worded on the invitations? We don't want to offend anyone, but we want it understood that we are sincere when we ask them to please forget about presents and donations.

Thank You!

MR. AND MRS. B.

DEAR B'S: On the bottom of the invitation, add, "Positive-ly no gifts, please!"

Opening lead - queen of spades.

A convention is an agreement with partner that certain bids or plays are to have certain meanings.

Without conventions all would be chaos. The nature of the game is such that partners must have a way of communicating with each other, and conventions are the means by which serious players accomplish this.

Assume you're East and partner leads the queen of spades. You play the king, in order not to block the suit, and it wins the trick. When you return the eight, South plays the ace and partner plays the jack.

Declarer leads the jack of clubs, which you win with the king, and now comes the moment of truth. If you return a diamond, which seems to be the normal thing to do, declarer makes the contract. But if you return a heart, which seems to be the abnormal thing to do, you beat the contract.

How can you be expected to be smart enough to return a heart? Because you and your partner are familiar with the suit-preference convention.

When declarer won your spade return with the ace, your partner still had the J-10-9-7-6 of spades, all equal in value. When he elected to play the jack, his highest spade, he was signaling that his entry card was in the highest-ranking suit, namely, hearts.

Had he held the ace of diamonds instead of the ace of hearts, he would have signaled with the lowest spade, the six, to show an entry in the lower-ranking suit, as between hearts and diamonds.

If you and your regular partner are only vaguely familiar with the suit-preference convention, here's your chance to get on the bandwagon and start saving bushels of points.

Governor Asks Funding Review

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Gov. J. James Exon Monday invited the Legislature to reconsider its 1974 authorization for a new pharmacy building at the University of Nebraska Medical Center.

Other similar suggestions that the lawmakers take another look at new construction projects will be forthcoming in the future, the governor said in an interview following his written proposal to the Legislature.

"We're going to look at these projects one at a time," he said. "There will be some others coming up."

'Review Necessary'
In an unusual letter to the senators, the governor suggested that "it is obviously necessary that we review past spending authorizations as well as proposed new ones in light of the state's financial crunch."

Thus, he said, he will wait until Jan. 30 before granting his required approval to plans for the $2.6 million pharmacy project.

That, Exon said, will give the Legislature "an opportunity to review this expenditure" of funds.

"If I have not received appropriate instructions from the Legislature by Jan. 30, I will assume that you approve this expenditure," the governor wrote.

The project would require $145,000 in planning funds for fiscal 1974-75, another $1.5 million in 1975-76 and $955,000 in 1976-77.

"The executive wishes to cooperate fully with the Legislature," Exon said. "Contrary unilateral action on my part of your previous construction authorization is not contemplated."

"This is a time, I emphasize once again, for careful planning."

Ready To OK It
Exon said he is prepared to grant approval of the project if the Legislature takes no further action on the matter.

Later, in an interview, the governor said both the Legislature and the executive branch should "take another look" at new projects.

"I want to give the Legislature an opportunity, if it wishes, to pass judgment once again on these major spending items."

But, he said, "generally speaking," he believes that ongoing construction projects "should not be questioned."

"We can't afford to leave pillars sticking up in the air. That would be penny-wise and pound-foolish."

Thus, the policy will not affect the state office building, the animal science facilities at NU's Lincoln campus or other projects already under construction.

Exon said a fresh look at authorized new construction is also warranted by the fact that there may be "projects of higher priority need" awaiting authorization.

"I'm not sure the financial crunch of the state is yet fully appreciated by some of the members of the Legislature or the general public," the governor said.

Panel To Probe Gift Of Pershing

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

The Legislature's Education Committee voted Monday to investigate the recent gift of Beatrice's defunct Pershing College to the University of Nebraska Foundation.

The inquiry was requested by Omaha Sen. John Cavanaugh in a letter to Education Committee chairman Sen. Frank Lewis of Bellevue.

Sen. Maurice Kremer of Aurora made the motion for the investigation, saying he is "highly apprehensive" about the use of the 65-acre campus in view of declining enrollments.

Kremer indicated he feared the gift, donated by William Scully of Beatrice, might commit the state to future expenditures. The foundation, which consists of NU alumni, is expected to turn the property over to the University of Nebraska system.

All Five Agree
All five committee members present, including Sen. George Burrows who represents the Beatrice area, favored the investigation.

Lewis said NU officials have no objections to the hearings. Hearings will begin within 20-30 days, Lewis said.

NU President D. B. Varner has said NU would not accept the campus until a use, acceptable to the Legislature and the governor, has been found.

Timing Questioned
Cavanaugh has also questioned the timing of the gift which came just before the beginning of the new year. There has been some unverified speculation that the gift was made for tax purposes.

In other business, the committee listened to testimony on LB82 which would guarantee teachers in class 1, 2, 3 and 6 school districts (all those outside Lincoln and Omaha) that just cause be shown when a teacher's annual contract is not renewed.

A public hearing would have to be held to air the reasons.

A Nebraska Supreme Court ruling in 1974 prompted Sen. Harold Simpson of Lincoln to introduce the bill. The court ruled, in effect, that teachers outside Lincoln and Omaha can have their contracts terminated for any or no cause.

'Just Causes'
"Just cause" would include incompetency, neglect of duty, unprofessional conduct, insubordination, immorality, physical or mental incapacity or "other conduct which interferes with the continued performance of duties." At the suggestion of school administrators, those reasons were amended to include a cut in teaching staff to reflect reduced enrollments.

S. H. "Zeke" Brauer Jr., secretary of the Nebraska School Improvement Association, opposed the bill, saying it "presumes the boards of education are totally irresponsible and that teachers need to be protected from them."

Another representative of school boards, Ross Rasmussen of the State School Boards Association called the bill "instant tenure" and suggested that the current tenure law for Lincoln and Omaha be extended statewide.

Lincoln and Omaha teachers are hired on a three-year probationary basis which can be extended for an extra two years. After that time, teachers are granted tenure.

Should Be Equal
"The Legislature should consider all teachers on an equal basis. The teacher in O'Neill or Crawford should have no more or less rights than teachers in Lincoln and Omaha," Rasmussen said.

Ted Kessner, an attorney representing the Nebraska State Education Association, asked the committee to support the bill. Kessner said all the teachers are asking for is due process.

"If they're not being terminated for just cause, what are the reasons — personal, political?" Why not bring these reasons out in the open," Kessner argued.

"The Legislature should consider all teachers on an equal basis. The teacher in O'Neill or Crawford should have no more or less rights than teachers in Lincoln and Omaha," Rasmussen said.

Ted Kessner, an attorney representing the Nebraska State Education Association, asked the committee to support the bill. Kessner said all the teachers are asking for is due process.

"If they're not being terminated for just cause, what are the reasons — personal, political?" Why not bring these reasons out in the open," Kessner argued.

Conditioning Problems Face Cipriano

By MARK GORDON

Star Sports Writer

Physical conditioning is still causing Nebraska's basketball team some problems.

"We wore down a little in the second half on Saturday (during a 74-61 victory over Kansas State)," said Nebraska coach Joe Cipriano at Monday's weekly press briefing. "We tired some, but we can be in better shape than we are."

The Huskers practiced for more than one hour on Sunday and again on Monday in an effort to prepare for Wednesday night's game in Norman against coach Joe Ramsey's Oklahoma Sooners.

"We're better off playing on Wednesday than on Monday," Cipriano said of the new Big Eight conference schedule of Saturday and Wednesday games. "I definitely saw a difference in Jerry Fort and Steve Willis (NU guards). They're in better shape now."

"Bob Siegel (6-7 sophomore forward) has been giving us longer efforts," he added. "Maybe I could have helped him a little, by giving him a rest on Saturday."

While a lack of stamina has hampered NU somewhat this season, Cipriano has been more than pleased with Willis. In fact, Cipriano termed the 5-10 transfer from North Idaho Junior College as "probably the best junior college transfer we've had here in 12 years."

"He's (Willis) an important cog in our whole program," he added. "From the whole standpoint of offense and defense, he's been a complete player for us."

Cipriano said both guards—Fort and Willis—should expect a strenuous game against Oklahoma. Willis has been assigned 5-10 sophomore guard Eddie Fields and Fort will cover 6-2 senior guard Mike McCurdy.

Joe Cipriano Discusses Huskers

Both guards performed admirably against the Sooners in a 75-64 triumph over OU in an opening-round test in late December at the Big Eight's Preseason Tournament at Kansas City, Mo. And that's exactly the effort Nebraska needs on Wednesday, Cipriano noted.

"One reason we did so well against them the first time was that our guards played so well," Cipriano said. "If we could just get our players to realize that if they start playing with that same effort in all our games . . .

"I'm sure we'll see something different from Oklahoma than what they did at Kansas City," he continued. "I don't think you'll see many people get out of Norman (with a win). But this is one place where you could get a step on the rest of the teams (by winning)."

Nevertheless, Cipriano knows only too well the secret to beating Oklahoma is to depress 6-9 all-American center Alvan Adams.

Although Adams took game honors with 28 points and 16 rebounds against NU, the Huskers checked him early.

"We played Adams about as well as we could have," Cipriano said. "We have to have a team effort on him. I guess we need all five players on him, although it does depend a little on where he is."

"He's the closest I've seen to the best big man since I've been coaching in the Big Eight," he said. "He can do so many things . . . he's got all the moves."

The Sooners are coming off an easy 113-62 victory over Colorado. That only missed by two points of equaling the most points ever scored by an Oklahoma club (115 against Arkansas in 1971).

Besides that, Nebraska has not triumphed at the OU Fieldhouse since a 70-60 victory in 1970.

So the Huskers have a difficult task Wednesday in attempting to retain a share of the league lead.

David Humm receives the Richman-Gordman Player of the Year award from Regional Manager Marvin Dienstfrag.

Humm's 1974 Highlights: Co-Captain, Fans' Vote

By BOB OWENS

Star Sports Editor

Nebraska's senior quarterback Dave Humm had two good things happen to him during the 1974 season that he'll always remember.

One was being elected co-captain by his teammates and the other was being selected by a vote of Cornhuskers fans as Nebraska player of the year.

Humm accepted a beautiful trophy Monday at a luncheon at the Hilton Hotel sponsored by the Richman Gordman Stores, which conducted weekly balloting by fans to select the player of the year.

The promotion also includes a $1,000 scholarship in Humm's honor to be given next fall to an NU retailing student to be selected by the University Foundation and the college of Business Administration

Last year's winner of the scholarship was Mark Rasmussen of Omaha, a marketing major who has been accepted to enroll in the graduate business school at Harvard. Rasmussen's scholarship was in honor of Steve Runtz, last year's player of the year winner.

Participating in the award presentation were Marvin Dienstfray, Richman Gordman's regional supervisor assistant dean Gary Schwandman of the NU College of Business Administration, and Harry R. Haynie, University Foundation president.

Dan Gordman, president of the 27-store Richman Gordman midwestern chain, said the scholarship award has a dual purpose—to honor an outstanding member of the Husker football squad and to contribute toward the education of a future business executive.

"We now have about 20 Nebraska graduates in management positions," Gordman said. "And we look forward to recruiting many more. The university is a potent force in our cities and in our state, and we look to its graduates for our leadership in business as well as in politics and the professions."

Humm's attention the next week will be the professional football draft, which starts in New York next Tuesday. Already he has been receiving phone calls from agents and he expects to sign with one by next Tuesday.

Then it will be a matter of waiting and hoping for the phone call that will tell him he has been drafted. While he has had no definite contacts from pro clubs, he will be very disappointed if he isn't selected.

"Being selected isn't as big a thing as making the club once you've been drafted," Humm said.

He thinks teammates Tom Ruud and Bob Nelson enhanced their draft chances by their play in the Senior Bowl game recently in Mobile, Ala. "They were on all the specialty teams and both did good jobs," he said.

Nebraska Prep Ratings

By Randy York

Class B

- 1—Omaha Tech (6-2)
- 2—Sidney (8-2)
- 3—Minden (7-1)
- 4—Fairbury (9-2)
- 5—Crete (6-2)
- 6—Ord (7-1)
- 7—Aurora (6-3)
- 8—Omaha Holy Name (8-2)
- 9—Auburn (7-2)
- 10—West Point CC (8-1)

Comment — Minden advances to No. 3 after whipping Lexington, 72-44. Aurora moves back into top 10 with impressive 13-point win over Central City and 21-point victory over Geneva. Four-time losers Lincoln Plus X and Cozad bear watching.

Class C

- 1—Geneva (8-1)
- 2—West Point (9-0)
- 3—Grant (10-0)
- 4—Milford (7-3)
- 5—Wilber (9-1)
- 6—Tri-County (7-2)
- 7—Bassett (9-2)
- 8—Friend (9-2)
- 9—Raymond Central (8-3)
- 10—Southeast Consol. (9-0)

Comment — Geneva holds top rating despite loss to Class B-rated Aurora. No. 1 status will get another critical test this weekend — Friday against No. 6 Tri-County and Saturday at Class B's No. 3 Minden. Milford, conqueror of Wilber, also plays Tri-County Saturday night. St. Edward is 100, but schedule blocks ratings bid.

Palmer Terms Miller 'World's Best Golfer'

Pebble Beach, Calif. (UPI) — Arnold Palmer says there is no question in his mind — Johnny Miller is the best golfer in the world and as such is unbeatable. Palmer made his 1975 debut last week in the Dean Martin-Tucson Open but is passing up the Bing Crosby National Pro-Am here this week. Before heading east for a short rest, Palmer had a chance to watch Miller in action from up close.

"There isn't a part of his game that isn't sound," said Palmer of Miller. "He's hitting the ball longer and straighter than anyone else, his iron shots are letter perfect and he's putting very well."

"On top of that, Miller has such confidence in his game that he can win on that alone even if he should develop a problem. That's the key to winning golf — confidence — and right now Miller has so much of it that he can't wait to play."

had a couple years ago for the 23-1 team. Everyone was there."

Having played a quality schedule was equally instrumental in manufacturing the upset, Borgen believes. Milford's three losses have been to Class A's unbeaten York, defending Class B state champion Lincoln Plus X and to Centennial, another Class B club.

"We gave York a good scrap (67-59) and played well against Plus X (in a 61-58 setback)," notes Borgen. "We were disappointed most with the loss to Centennial."

The latter loss is what cost Milford in the Southern Nebraska Conference Tournament seedings in a meeting among league coaches Monday at Geneva.

Milford earned the No. 3 seed in the Eastern division behind Wilber and Tri-County. Tecumseh, Pawnee City and Wymore Southern followed in that order.

In the Western division, top-ranked Geneva earned the No. 1 seed with once-beaten Sandy Creek seeded second. Following, in order, were Sutton, Hebron, Harvard and winless Henderson.

Last year, Milford finished a surprising second in the rugged Southern Nebraska Conference Tournament. This year, the Eagles are much stronger offensively and defensively and have championship designs.

Balance will be the key. Milford features as much of it as any team in the conference.

Jeff Stutzman and Ron Wergin are behind last year's respective 17.4 and 15.0-point scoring

Aggressive Defensive Play Boosts Milford

By RANDY YORK

Prep Sports Editor

Milford's full-court zone trap defense may not cause opponents to commit a rash of turnovers.

It's more of a tempo-setter. It gets the Eagles pumped up to play their best.

"It seems to get us moving, get us into the swing of things," says second-year coach Bob Borgen. "It seems like we stand around too much and don't come around until we go into the press."

Defense has been the name of the game all season for Milford, which vaulted to the No. 4 spot in this week's Class C ratings following its 54-50 conquest of previously unbeaten Wilber. "We're stressing defense so much more this year," says the 24-year-old Borgen, who succeeded his brother, Dennis, at Milford when Dennis moved to the head basketball job at Class A Columbus.

"I think our being aggressive defensively is what helped us beat Wilber," observes Borgen. The Eagles checked Wilber's 6-5 standout Russ Andersen to 11 points.

Dave Welsch, Milford's 64 junior, accomplished most of the defensive job on Andersen. "He fronted him and only gave up seven points," according to Borgen. "We also pinched with the guards to get the job done."

A large and enthusiastic Milford following at Wilber played its part in producing the upset, too, adds Borgen.

"We really packed that place," notes Borgen. "It was the same type of following that Milford

Spaghetti Ritual Works For LSE's Lucchino

By RANDY YORK

Last Saturday morning, John Lucchino went to Lincoln High's Johnson Gym, weighed in at 9 o'clock, ran all the way home and sat down to a plate of spaghetti at 9:30.

Lucchino, Lincoln Southeast's full-blooded Italian 119-pound wrestling standout, has a ritual before each meet.

"I've got to eat my mom's spaghetti or I don't feel like I've got a chance to win," says Lucchino, who manufactured a big surprise in winning the Eastern 1-80 Conference 119-pound championship last Saturday night.

Lucchino would like to have eaten the spaghetti the night before the conference meet, but there was a problem — he's been watching his weight better than the most religious weight watcher.

"I didn't even eat, period, Friday night," relates John. "I haven't been eating for a couple of weeks to get down to 119. It's been all grapefruits and raw eggs stirred up in orange juice."

It's been a fight for Lucchino to get down to where he wants to wrestle the rest of the season.

"I weighed 140 last summer when I attended the Southern Iowa Wrestling Camp at Graceland College," Lucchino points out. "It's really been tough to diet down."

Especially when his mom is such a great cook. "I have to fight it and try to stay away from the house," he admits. "I'll go down to the YMCA with Steve Hill and Ron Anderson just so I won't have to smell what's cooking and be tempted to eat."

Lucchino entered the Eastern 1-80 with a mediocre 3-4 record and was seeded fourth in his first venture into 119-pound competition this season.

"Last year, I went down from 112 to 105 and qualified for state," recalls Lucchino. "I feel better when I'm light. I'm quicker. I'm not a muscle wrestler."

"I'm staying at 119 the rest of the year," he declares. "No way am I going back up. If I ever do, I just won't wrestle and I haven't missed a varsity match in three years."

Although he admits his 6-4 record "sounds terrible, especially for a senior," Lucchino intends to project himself into the thick of the battle for state-wide 119-pound honors.

He views his move down a weight class philosophically. "To me," says Lucchino, "the season has just begun. I know I have a long way to go, but I'm going to do my best to get there."

If he can limit his spaghetti sessions to pre-meet meals, John's hoping for more championship finishes.

This week's Lincoln wrestling schedule includes: Tuesday — Lincoln High at Southeast (7 p.m.), Northeast at Ralston, East at Papillion, Pius X at Beatrice; Thursday — Grand Island at East (7 p.m.), Southeast at Millard, Pius X at Crete; Friday — Hastings at Lincoln High (3:30 p.m.); Saturday — Northeast at Grand Island.

Snowmobile Registration Necessary

With the popularity of snowmobiles increasing throughout Nebraska, snow machine operators should be aware of the rules and regulations governing their sport.

If the operator owns the machine and runs it on his own private land it does not have to be registered. But, if the operator runs it on any other private land or public land, including road right-of-way, it must be registered with the Department of Motor Vehicles in Lincoln.

NU Teams To Travel

Nebraska's gymnastics, wrestling and swimming teams all hit the road this weekend for each sport's respective competitive matchup.

Francis Allen's gymnastics squad travels to Colorado Saturday for a meet with the Buffaloes. This will be the Huskers' first action since Dec. 13-14 when the Huskers finished first in the Rocky Mountain Open in Denver.

Last year, Nebraska defeated Colorado in Lincoln 154-90-144.95. Following its trip to Boulder, Nebraska will travel to Iowa State on Feb. 1 to face the defending NCAA champion Cyclones.

Nebraska's wrestling team, fresh from a 36-3 defeat of Kansas State in Manhattan on Jan.

Omaha, Neb. (UPI) — The University of Nebraska at Omaha tripped the University of South Dakota 81-72 at the UNO fieldhouse Monday night.

The visitors from Vermillion led 40-35 at halftime, but the Mavericks gained a 46-35 lead with 16:42 left and never relinquished the advantage.

SOUTH DAKOTA (72): Powers 11, Nissen 16, Galloway 11, Peterson 12, Meyer 4, Fry 4, Summers 7, Biskell 4, Gudlak 3. UNO (81): Anderson 26, Barred 11, Pemberton 8, Grimes 4, Keenan 8, Fleming 8, McMorris 6, Grims 2. Halftime: South Dakota 40, UNO 35.

Texan Outs Metreveli

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Alex Metreveli, perhaps Russia's best tennis player, was knocked out of the $115,000 Indoor Tennis Tournament Monday night by Sherwood Stewart of Texas.

Stewart ousted the eighth-seeded Metreveli, in a first-round match decided by a tie breaker, 3-6, 6-3, 7-6.

Stewart, who had never before played the eighth-seeded Metreveli, went ahead 5-4 in the third set, when Metreveli lost service by netting a forehand.

Meanwhile, ninth-seeded Roscoe Tanner of Lookout Mountain, Tenn., rebounded from an opening-set loss and beat Patrice Dominguez of France 6-7, 6-3, 6-2 in a battle of left-handers.

Fourth-seeded Tom Okker of The Netherlands won his opening-round match today in the $115,000 U.S. Pro Indoor Tennis Championship over Jose Higueras of Spain 6-2, 6-3.

Jackson Hopes To Stay In Ring With Champion

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — When M. Jackson meets Muhammad Ali in the ring Tuesday night, it'll be for a worthy cause—at least, Jackson hopes so.

M. Jackson is the heavy-weight mayor of Atlanta. He says he'll be fighting as M. Jackson which stands for either mayor or Maynard. "whichever you like to remember me by."

There was a kind of weigh-in at City Hall Monday. No scales, but some statistics were announced. Ali wasn't there, but Jackson was.

"We all know what'll happen if he hits me," Jackson said. "I'm thinking about how I can apologize quickly if I hit him."

The "fight," scheduled to begin at 7 p.m., is a benefit performance to promote black business gains in Atlanta.

An exhibition is scheduled also between Ali and his brother, Rahman.

Although Jackson has a four inch reach advantage on the world champion, there are some disadvantages.

For instance, Ali will weigh in at 220, more or less.

"I'll weigh at least that much," Jackson told newsmen and dropped the subject.

An abbreviated tale-of-the-tape looks something like this:

Age—Ali 33, Jackson 36. Weight—Ali 220, Jackson at least that much. Height—Ali 6 feet 3, Jackson 6 feet 1. Reach—Ali 80 inches, Jackson 84 inches. Chest (normal)—Ali 43 inches, Jackson 48 inches. Chest (expanded)—Ali 45 inches, Jackson 50 inches. Waist—Ali 34 inches, Jackson, unannounced. Neck—Ali 17½ inches, Jackson 18 inches. Wrist—Ali 8 inches, Jackson 8 inches. Fist—Ali 13 inches, Jackson 12½ inches.

Jackson said there is no truth to reports that the police department's "SWAT squad," a special tactical group, would be in his corner.

"But I would like to say that as long as Ali stays in the center of the ring, he'll be all right," he said. "But if he gets near the ropes, he's in trouble. I'm gonna have 40 guys with bats standing all around."

Jackson read a poem to help promote the exhibition.

"So come out and see it, the fight of the year

"I'll face Ali's challenge with courage, not fear

"Cuz he may be a fighter, but I'll throw out this dare.

"He wouldn't survive for a week being mayor."

Burial Of Storage Tanks Under Alley OKd By City

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

The City Council Monday granted the Lincoln Telephone & Telegraph Co. and the Lincoln Foundation permission to use public space to bury fuel storage tanks.

The firms asked to use space beneath the alley between 14th and 15th Sts.

Although the council granted the application, the lawmakers axed a proposal to modify the type of storage tanks required.

Public Works Director Bob Obering recommended that the tanks be placed inside a concrete structure to protect other underground utility lines in the event a tank should rupture.

Alternative Suggested
Attorney Bob Guenzel said the concrete boxes would cost an extra $90,000 and suggested that a concrete lid would be adequate to protect against spills. He also suggested that a fiberglass tank be used instead of a metal tank. Guenzel said the alternate proposals were "reasonable."

In voting to go along with Obering's proposals, Councilman Steve Cook said, "While this is drastic, the alternative (spilled fuel oil) is much worse."

In other action, the council hiked admission charges at the Children's Zoo, 28th and A. Adults will be charged $1 instead of 75 cents and children will be charged 35 cents, instead of 30 cents. The new fees will go into effect this spring.

The increase in fees will help defray increasing costs to feed the animals, buy new ones and maintain equipment at the zoo.

The city lawmakers also agreed to settle out of court the case of Gottner v. City.

Sued For Change
Raymond Gottner had sued the city on a zoning change approved by the City Council for his property at Eastridge Dr. and O St. Gottner had requested a change of zone to G Local Business on one lot facing O St. and F Restricted Business on the remaining land. Surrounding homeowners objected to the business zoning facing Eastridge Dr. and Lyncrest Dr. The City Council had approved F zoning on the one lot, leaving

A-1 single family on the remainder.

City Atty. Dick Wood said the compromise worked out with Gottner calls for extensive landscaping along the residential streets and the limitation on the building area, signs and lighting.

Additionally, the developer will be prohibited from building service stations, car washes, carry-out restaurants, new or used automobile sales, hotels-motels or using billboard advertising.

In further business, the council directed that a resolution be placed on next week's agenda appropriating $34,277 to the Lincoln Action Program. The money will be used to continue the program called Services to Families with Alcohol Related Problems.

The council also:

Ordinances, Third Reading
— Withheld play of Cornhusker Industrial Plaza at 20th and Fairfield, because the developer had not submitted bonds.

— Approved repaving district in 7th, from J to H; 8th from K to L; 8th from O to M; N from 7th to 8th; M from 7th to 9th; L from 7th to 9th, and K from 8th to 9th.

Resolutions and Public Hearings — Approved application of Der Brate Slube Corp., dba Loaf & Stein, for retail Class C license, 1228 P.

— Approved manager application of Robert Cole Jr. for Loaf & Stein.

Colin Favors Giving CD Food To Hungry

County Commissioner Bob Colin said Monday he would like to see the food stockpiled in the country's various Civil Defense shelters distributed to low income groups and others who need the food.

Colin's remarks came during a joint city-county meeting to discuss the future of the local Civil Defense agency.

Some City Council members and county commissioners have questioned whether the two-member CD office should be continued, particularly now that the threat of a nuclear war has diminished. No conclusion was reached Monday.

May. Gen. Francis Winner, state adjutant general and state director of Civil Defense, told the local officials that he believed the agency is needed to marshal forces during natural disasters.

Winner said he did not believe that other agencies, such as the police and fire departments, could handle civil defense duties as well.

Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf said the continued operation of the office is a "good insurance policy" during snow emergencies and other disasters.

However, Colin questioned the need to maintain a series of shelters and to stockpile food. Colin said the food is rotting away in the shelters and said the city and county should direct that the food be distributed to the hungry.

Civil Defense Director George Drake disputed that much of the food is "rotting away." Drake said only 5 to 10% of the food has spoiled and that much of the rations are 10 to 12 years old. He said he would be glad to distribute the rations if directed by the council and commissioners.

Col. Veri Johnson of the State CD office pointed out that the food is edible, but far from tasty. "It'll keep you from starving," he said.

Johnson noted that the federal government is no longer replacing the food when it is used or thrown away.

Last summer the council and County Board refused to budget money to hire a full-time deputy director and promised to consider whether to fund the office at all next year.

Council Will Consider Department's Makeup

The City Council vowed Monday to take a second look at the organization of the city's two-year-old Community Development Department.

The department includes everything from the housing administrator's office to the Alcohol Safety Action Program (ASAP) to the City-County Commission on Aging.

Director Leo Scherer agreed with the council that the ASAP project and the Commission on Aging should be placed either in the Health Department or under the proposed human services division.

Those two agencies were placed in Scherer's department because they "existed as floating divisions," City Atty. Dick Wood explained.

The council also asked the city administration to consider consolidating all inspections divisions in one department. Currently, there are inspectors housed in the Public Works Department and in the housing administrator's office.

The council called the meeting with Scherer to review his department's operations.

Scherer also is the project manager for the Centrum, a proposed parking garage and merchandising complex proposed for downtown. Scherer said that the Centrum and overseeing various neighborhood groups takes up most of his time.

LAP Fracas Over Leadership

Grasping at a loophole in the Lincoln Action Program (LAP) bylaws, a handful of LAP board members attempted Monday to elect a nonmember chairman.

The incongruity centered around the nomination of Marge Harding, outgoing board chairman, to retain her position.

Harding was defeated last fall in her bid for re-election as a low-income area representative to the board. The old board was retired officially at the December annual meeting.

LAP bylaws do not specifically state that officers must be bona fide board members.

Harding's petition plea to be seated as a board member at large contained 80 signatures obtained from the low-income community; only 67 persons voted in the area election, she pointed out.

Her petition case was to have been left up to the newly-elected executive committee.

Following the election of other officers — Alberta Cooke, vice chairman; Ralph Bassett, secretary; and Mike Merwick, treasurer — the battle over the bylaws was renewed.

The issue was referred to an appointed committee of seven, headed by Cooke, who will take up the question with the field

Stuart On Bank Board

The board of directors of the National Bank of Commerce, at its annual meeting Monday, announced the election of James Stuart Jr. to the board.

Stuart currently holds the position of executive vice president, NBC Co., a one-bank holding company. Prior to joining NBC Co. in 1973, Stuart was employed by First National City Bank of New York City.

The board also announced the following promotions:

Herman A. Brockmeier was promoted to executive vice president, executive services group.

Wilbur H. Baack was promoted to senior vice president, correspondent bank division.

Loren R. Anderson, who was appointed head of the administration division in January 1973, was elected senior vice president.

Donald F. Dillon was promoted to senior vice president, and is manager of the information management division.

Douglas G. Afford was promoted to senior vice president, mortgage loan division.

Robert L. Hans, manager of the investment division, was promoted to senior vice president.

Like mysterious sentinels, these monolithic forms were recently discovered in the center of Silver Dry Lake, near Baker, Calif., about 90 miles from Las Vegas. UMA Could Receive Funds Any Day Now

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

After months of waiting for new lifeblood, the University of Mid-America (UMA) might get the first drops of a $12.5 million transfusion within a "matter of days," a Washington official told The Lincoln Star.

Jerome Lord, program officer for the National Institute of Education (NIE), said a decision on multi-year funding for UMA and its affiliate State University of Nebraska (SUN) might be announced by Thursday.

NIE is nearing the end of negotiations on a five-year proposal submitted by UMA, an open-learning consortium to develop courses modeled after the SUN project for adults in four states.

Promising Sign

When the NIE National Council met 11 days ago, Lord said, the fact that it "came out with no policy action against" the UMA proposal allowed competitive negotiations to continue, a promising sign for the funding award.

NIE is the educational research and development arm of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, which has already granted about $1.3 million to SUN, a four-year-old experiment in non-traditional education. SUN began offering college courses to Nebraskans at home this fall.

The brainchild of D. B. Varner, NC and UMA president, SUN has received a total of about $2.3 million from NIE and the U.S. Office of Education, and more than $300,000 from other federal agencies, endowments and private foundations and business.

The $12.5 million UMA request — for part of NIE's hard-won $70 million pie — is crucial to SUN's proposal to develop 55 courses in the next five years, and to establish off-campus, multimedia college programs in the other UMA member states, through Iowa State, Kansas, Kansas State and Missouri Universities.

UMA asked NIE for funding alternates of $1.98 million for an initial six-month period, or $3.6 million for the first year.

Delivery Systems

If the initial grant is for one year, UMA would use about $100,000 to $200,000 to develop educational delivery systems in the four states, and the remainder would be subcontracted through NU to SUN for continued research, course development and administration, according to Melvin D. George.

The dollar distribution "will depend on the final award" by NIE, said George. SUN provost and UMA vice president for academic affairs.

NIE officials, Lord told The Star, "bear in mind very clearly and very consistently that this (UMA) is an experiment, and it could fail."

"It therefore, for us, is not to be confused with an institution being built," Lord said.

UMA is "the first consortium of this kind in the history of higher education in the U.S.," Lord pointed out. He explained the experiment, then, is twofold: First, to explore how an open-learning system "can increase access to postsecondary education, while maintaining quality and keeping costs as low as possible," and second, to establish and judge the effectiveness of multi-based education through media.

Golden Says He Won't Quit

By NANCY HICKS
Star Staff Writer

County Treasurer Frank Golden says he has no intention of resigning and will continue to improve operations in the treasurer's and motor vehicle offices.

Golden, a Democrat, responded Monday afternoon to the weekend announcement of a Lancaster County GOP executive committee which is considering possible action in the "Golden affair."

The committee, headed by Gar Donnellson, will consider three suggestions: a petition drive calling for the recall of Golden by the voters, demanding Golden's resignation and legislation requiring qualifications for the office of county treasurer.

Golden has come under fire in recent weeks after a state audit charged his office with loose bookkeeping procedures.

Golden did agree with one solution to be studied by the committee — requiring general qualifications for the office of county treasurer.

The three county commissioners and State Auditor Ray Johnson also agreed the law should require some qualifications for holding office as county treasurer.

Newly elected Commissioner Bruce Hamilton went one step further, saying, "This is added evidence that these offices shouldn't be elected. They should be appointed by the county board within guidelines."

Board Chairman Jan Gauger, a Republican, said she found the GOP action "totally appropriate."

"The parties have a responsibility to monitor and hold county officials responsible for their action. I am encouraged that in our county that the Republican Party is interested in that responsibility."

The GOP statement criticized Golden's investment policy, stating, "Particularly shocking is that Mr. Golden had nearly $2-000,000 of Lancaster County taxpayers' money sitting idle in unused checking accounts for several years.

"If these funds had been invested at only 6% interest, in four years the taxpayers would have gained nearly $500,000."

Golden told county commissioners and Johnson last week that he plans to update his record and money handling procedures. He said Monday he is currently withdrawing idle money from 16 county banks and investing it in interest-bearing accounts.

New Varieties Improve Yield

"The 20 new varieties of wheat released by the Nebraska Agricultural Experiment Station over the years are a good example of the new technology required by the agricultural industry today," according to Dr. Duane Acker, vice chancellor for Agriculture and Natural Resources, University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

"Improved yields," he said, "can be attributed in large part to improved varieties — and new varieties are a result of research." Acker told members of the Nebraska Crop Improvement Association at the annual Crop Improvement Days here Monday that new technology is required to maintain or increase the capacity of Nebraska to produce grain and feeder calves, or to feed cattle and produce milk.

"In varietal development alone," he said, "there has been a 39% increase in yield from the old Turkey variety of wheat, from 100 years ago, to the present Nebraska-developed Cen-turk, based on a three-year comparison in 10 states."

Nebraska wheat yield has improved from 24 bushels per acre in 1959 to 37 bushels per acre last year — with a projected figure of 51 bushels per acre by 1985.

The station has also released seven oat and four barley varieties. Two wheat and four oat varieties were released in cooperation with other states.

"Plant breeding research is also developing wheat, oats, and legumes of high protein content and quality," Acker said. Dr. John Schmidt and Dr. Virgil Johnson have developed a new wheat line which is higher in protein under all growing conditions than varieties now grown in the hard red winter wheat belt.

Acker told the group the planned NU Plant Science Complex on East Campus will greatly ease the current space problem. "We are currently utilizing a former haymow of the old horse barn, and two former poultry houses as laboratories," he said.

Campbell, Wagner Take Ag Honors

Wayne Campbell of Lodgepole and Bob Wagner of Hartington were announced as premier seed growers for 1975 by the Nebraska Crop Improvement Association here Monday night.

The two veteran seed producers were presented plaques by Dr. Donald G. Hanway, chairman of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Department of Agronomy, on behalf of NCIA at the annual Crop Improvement Days banquet.

Campbell has farming and ranching operations in Cheyenne and Garden Counties, and has certified seed for more than 25 years. He has been farming since 1938, living on the farmstead his father moved to north of Lodgepole in 1919.

The Campbell unit consists of 1,400 acres of dryland 200 acres of irrigated land, with an annual production average of 5,000 bushels of wheat and 2,000 bushels of oats. In recent years he has certified Centurk and Hi-Plains wheat and Trio and Pettis oats.

Wagner has had a long career as a seed producer and seedsman, and although admitting to being past 70 is still "in the harness" in his business, Farm Service Corp.

His total operation, a family corporation, includes a farm of 800 acres, a seed merchandising business, a 200-head cow herd and seed certification of oats and soybeans, including raising some of his own and contracting with other growers.

WARD... with wandering dog.

Tale Of Dog Ends In Joy

Sad stories sometimes have happy endings. So it is with the saga of Beau, the lost Labrador retriever.

Nine days ago, Beau strayed from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Ward, 3015 Apple, where his owner, Mrs. Mary Boen of Idaho Falls, Idaho — the Wards' niece — was visiting.

The story of Beau's disappearance — and the events that preceded it — captured the sympathy of Lincoln residents when it ran in The Star last week.

Dog Stood Guard
Mrs. Boen's husband Harold Boen died on a solo hunting expedition in Idaho several months ago. Beau was with Boen at the time of his death, and he stood guard over his master's body for 24 hours until help came.

Many people called The Star and the Ward residence with reports of having seen dogs that matched the description given of Beau.

But none of the dogs that Mrs. Boen went to look at was Beau. And when she left for home last Thursday, she had "almost given up hope" of finding him.

Apparently, that small measure of hope that remained was enough. Beau went home Monday on Frontier flight 105.

The long search for Beau ended Saturday when Ward received a call from Tom Wolf, 3537 S St.

Stray Reported
Wolf reported that a stray dog fitting the description of Beau given in The Star had been loose in his neighborhood for several days.

Ward hurried over and identified the dog as Beau. Seeking shelter from the cold, Beau had expropriated a doghouse in Wolf's neighborhood. "He had crowded another dog out of his own doghouse," Ward said.

Ward took Beau to a veterinarian who then called Mrs. Boen for a more positive identification.

"There's absolutely no question in my mind right now that it is Beau," said Ward, after putting the dog on the airplane.

'Seemed To Know'
"He seemed really at ease when he got into the kennel" at the airport, Ward continued. "He seemed to know that he was going home."

Contacted at her home in Idaho Falls Monday morning, Mrs. Boen said she was "thrilled to death" about Beau's impending arrival.

"Everybody's going with me to meet him at the airport," she said, adding "I've got a lot of good friends here" who have been concerned about Beau.

And of her friends here, Mrs. Boen said, "I can't thank the people of Lincoln enough for the way they helped."

"We never would have found Beau without them."

Preliminary indications are that two developers have underbid the controversial lease the state has with Jado Investment, Inc., for office space for the State Labor Department in Omaha.

A third developer has submitted a bid which does not meet bid specifications but would cost the state roughly half of what it is paying for the Jado property.

Sen. John Savage of Omaha said the bid results show "what a rip-off the state is getting from Jado." The Jado building, he said, was constructed when the cost of borrowing was lower than the rates in effect for the new bids.

An advisory committee Monday agreed to ask federal Labor Department officials to inspect the three properties. The inspection is tentatively slated for next Tuesday.

Must Be Approved

The committee decided to call in federal officials for an inspection after the three bidders supplied additional information requested by Stan Matzke.

state director of administrative services. The federal government, which will pay the rent on the building, must approve the site location before any action can be taken.

The state is presently paying $133,000 a year in base rent ($178,000 a year including utilities and taxes) for the Jado building at 5404 Cedar in Omaha.

The lease became a hot issue in the 1974 gubernatorial campaign when Republicans charged Gov. J. James Egan gave the lease to Jado because Michael Jackson, a Jado partner, supported Egan's election in 1970.

Republicans claimed the state was paying too much for 24,800 sq ft of office space and that the lease was not put out for bids. State law does not require formal bidding for office space.

Two Disqualified

Bidding was subsequently reopened. Five bids were submitted and two were disqualified because they offered only land to build upon.

Of the three remaining bids, International Property Management Co. of Omaha offered to construct a new building on 105th St. for an annual lease price of $123,000 ($166,000 including taxes and utilities).

The Gendler Land Investment Co. offered to construct a new building at 30th & Chicago containing 26,000 sq ft of usable space for $129,500 annually in base rent. Utilities and taxes, the firm said, would cost the same or slightly less than what the state pays for those items at the Jado location.

Matzke said the Gendler bid appears to meet all specifications.

Clinic Offered

The N. P. Dodge Co. offered to lease an existing building called the Physicians Clinic consisting of 24,258 sq ft of usable space for $66,000 annually, not including taxes and utilities. Savage said the Dodge bid appeared to be "a good deal."

However, Matzke pointed out that the bid specifications call for a new building or one built since 1971. The Dodge building was constructed in 1952.

"I think we'd be on very shaky ground if we put 1971 in our specifications and accepted something else," Matzke said.

He said the object of reopening the bidding process was to find something comparable or better.

Clinic Well Built

Savage said he has seen the building and considers it well built. The concern, he said, should be to get office space that meets the Labor Department's needs at the lowest price.

But Matzke said there are also two other problems with the Dodge offer — extensive interior remodeling would be needed since it has been sectioned off into doctors' offices and the Dodge company leases the property from a third party.

The International Properties offer was questioned from the standpoint of location, since it is on the west edge of Omaha and away from areas of high unemployment. That proposal is also based on state acceptance of the bid by Feb. 1.

Matzke said that will have to be checked into, since it is "almost impossible" for the state to complete action by Feb. 1.

State Broadcasters Blast Public Radio

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

The president of the Nebraska Broadcasters Association (NBA) said Monday the proposal for a statewide public radio network is unnecessary, "the state cannot afford it," and its establishment "would be inflationary."

Further, Gordon (Bud) Pentz told the Nebraska Educational Television (NETV) Commission, the NBA opposes spending money even for a study of the potential or need for public radio.

Commissioner Philip Heckman of Crete first proposed the idea of a public radio network last November. The commission in December authorized the NETV staff to apply for a federal grant to determine the feasibility of such a network.

NBA members "feel very strongly" against Nebraska public radio, said Pentz, of KWBE in Beatrice.

Nebraskans are already served by a wide range of news, music and topical discussion formats, Pentz said, suggesting public radio would only duplicate existing commercial offerings.

Jack McBride, commission secretary and NETV general manager, told Pentz, "this is sort of history repeating itself." McBride recalled NBA opposition in 1963 to the proposal the Legislature establish the NETV Network.

"I suggest," McBride said, "that possibly some of the members of the Nebraska Broadcasters Association don't realize the (NETV) commission has not approved any active public radio in Nebraska."

Pentz produced a memo from Adams Sen. George Burrows based on legislative research, concluding that the commission needs additional authority from the state to build or operate a public radio station.

McBride acknowledged that limitation, but explained the NETV Commission is the officially designated state agency responsible for public radio and television development.

Thus, McBride said, the commission "has every authority" to conduct a public radio study, which he called a "responsible, correct and appropriate action."

Should a study reveal interest in or need for a public radio network, McBride said, the commission will only recommend that to the Legislature and governor.

However, if a study shows public radio would not serve a unique, complementary function and duplicate commercial radio, the commission would drop the matter, McBride said.

In other business, the commission authorized NETV to buy a 2.75-acre site near Falls City for a maximum of $7,000 including a $600 option, plus survey and other fees.

Ron Hull, NETV Network program manager, reported that a bill was being drafted Monday in the Legislature to establish a weekly ETV series on agriculture for farmers and ranchers.

No Snow, But State Gets Wind

Although no new snow fell in Nebraska Monday, high winds over the state resulted in some drifting of old snow in the east while duststorms hit the west and southwest.

Several schools in eastern Nebraska closed early Monday afternoon as a safety precaution to enable buses to transport students home before county roads became impassable from drifting and blowing snow.

A high wind warning was issued for western and southwestern Nebraska Monday afternoon as strong gusty winds moved eastward, accompanying a fast moving cold front.

Winds were clocked at up to 43 mile-per-hour gusts at Scottsbluff.

Meanwhile, the State Department of Roads reported all highways in the state near normal, except in the northeast.

Burglary Investigated

The Lancaster County sheriff's office is investigating a burglary in which old coins and jewelry valued at more than $800 was taken from a home at 2133 21st Ave. in Waverly, owned by Hazel Finley.

Arkansas Boy Dies In I-80 Truck Crash

Sidney — A two-truck crash on Interstate 80 about 12 miles west of here Monday afternoon killed an 18-year-old Arkansas youth, Cheyenne County Attorney Don Tedesco said.

Tedesco identified the youth as Michael D. Shelley, of rural Siloam Springs, Ark.

Tedesco said a slow-moving eastbound semi-truck with a blown tire driven by William C. Platt, 48, of Salt Lake City, Utah, was struck in the rear by a semi driven by Edward Bartow, 36, also of rural Siloam Springs, Ark.

Shelley was a passenger in the Bartow truck. Bartow was the youth's uncle, Tedesco said.

Shelley was killed instantly. Tedesco said, and Platt was taken to a Sidney hospital, though his injuries were not believed serious. Bartow was not injured.

North Platte Teen Killed In Accident, Two Hurt

North Platte (AP) — A one-car accident on a North Platte street early Monday claimed the life of Gary Johnson, 17, according to investigating officers.

Police said Johnson was a passenger in a car driven by Michael Dunn, 20, also of North Platte. Dunn apparently lost control of the auto, hit at least three parked cars, then slammed into two trees, the report indicted.

Johnson was pronounced dead on arrival at a local hospital, while Dunn and another passenger, Byron Pelton, 17, North Platte, were hospitalized in a stable condition.

Police said the mishap is under investigation and that the Lincoln County attorney's office will make a decision on the possibility of filing charges.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE - Here's how to work it:

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three I's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
